CRUSHED TO DEATH IN WRECK

Twelve Killed and 25 Were Injured at Los Angeles Sunday

BOY PULLED WHISTLE

And Motorman of Car on a Switch Started and Crashed Into Two Other Trains —Hospitals Filled With Injured.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]

Los Angeles, Cal., July 14—To meddlesome young youths who played with the whistle is attributed the loss of twelve lives and the injury of some 200 persons near here late last night when two Pacific Electric trains collided telescoping two cars and wrecking another at Vineyard station, near the city limits.

Many of the injured will die.

Three trains loaded with excursionists to the beach at Venice, 16 miles from Los Angeles had stopped at a curve where a swiwtch is located. The last train began moving forward while the two foremost trains remained at a standstill.

Carroll Bartholomae, conductor of the last train, jumped to the track with his light to flag the fast approaching train. A boy, passengers say, pulled the whistle in jest. This it was said by railroad men, was interpreted by the motorman on the oncoming train as the signal to go ahead.

With a crash of breaking glass, splintering timbers and the cries of passengers, the motor car of the last train drove into the rear of the center train. The m otorman of the moving train had given full speed. A curve had prevented his seeing the standing cars.

The rear of the stationary train was filled to capacity, the aisles were crowded with passengers. The seats were shuffled as a deck of cards by the impact. Those who stood were crushed against each other into the far end of the car. The lights went out.

Arthur Hill, sailor from the Torpedo Boat Paul Jones, carried out eight bodies, including a woman gripping an infant's body in her arms.

Few of the Christian Endeavor delegates were on the train

Practically all of those killed and injured were residents of Los Angeles and suburbs.

Immediately after the crash the cars rolled down an embankment.

Hundreds of pleasure seekers were in the c ars.

Women and children were in the majority.

Hospitals in Los Angeles are filled with the injured victims.

Scores of private automobiles brought the injured to hospitals here.

Helen Hane of Escanaba, Michigan was reported today today as probably fatally injured. Her body was crushed.

C. B. Craig and his wife of Detroit were internally injured and their condition is serious.

Of the dead four men remained unidentified early today, two Japanese and two white The known dad are:

Miss Edna Alter, Pasadena; Ollie W. Axley, San Francisco; Miss Veroniça Miller, Los Angeles; Merle Evans, Los Angeles; William Taylor, Jacob Barman and Edward Murray, addresses unknown.

P. R. Forrester, motorman of the wrecked train, missing.

It is thought virtually all the injured were from Los Angeles or vicinity. While no formal statements have been issued by railroad officials they are inclined to place the blame for the accident on Forrester, the motorman, and the conductor of the stationary train. Lacking Forrester's story, no clear account of what happened has yet been obtainable.

Investigation was begun today to fix the blame for the Pacific Electric accident last night at Vineyard station where twelve persons were killed and nearly 25 injured. The curve in the tracks of the Venice short line at the p lace is held partly responsible for the failure of the motorman to see the stationary cars with which his train collided.

The motorman was missing today. His body was not found in the debris, although it was thought certain that he had been killed.

Carroll Bartholomae, conductor of the last car of the stationary train said he made an effort to "flag down" the approaching cars, but that the motorman failed to observe the signals.

Stories of the accident related by passengers on the two trains differ widely and much difficulty will be experienced in reaching the truth. The crash came so suddenly that only those on the rear car of the standing train had any warning.

HEADS OF THE RAILWAY ORGANIZATIONS.

Cong. Ashbrook Defends Action In Recommending New Philadelphia Man

Washington, July 14.—Representative William A. Ashbrook of the Seventeenth Ohio District, who hurried back to Washington after the publication of charges made by J. E. Hurst of New Philadelphia in connection with his recommendation of W. T. Alberson for the postmastership of that city, made a vigorous defense of his action in naming Alberson. Mr. Ashbrook declared that there is nothing in the Hurst charges that could lnot be averred against any other postoffice selection in Ohio.

A fresh development in the New Philadelphia case yesterday was the information that Harvey C. Garber of Columbus has taken up cudgels for Hurst, who has placed himself in nomination at the Postoffice Department against Alberson.

Mr. Garber, it is reported, will endeavor to do at New Philadelphia what he failed to do at Greenville and several other Ohio cities, namely, to induce the administration to disregard the recommendation of congressmen in making the appointment.

Hurst claims to be an original Wilson supporter and Garber will ask the place for him on the ground that Alberson was a Harmon supporter in the primaries last year.

Thus it seem that the warfare which was waged between Mr. Garber and Representative J. Henry Goeke over the Greenville and other Darke county offices may be repeated in the New Philadelphia case between Garber and Ashbrook The latter declares he will stay in Wasington until he sees the name of his candidate sent to the Senate by the President. But even this eventually would be only a partial victory, since Senator Burton, to whom the anti-Ashbrook Democrats of New Philadelphia have been complaining, will here see the opportunity to block a confirmation and retain Postmaster Wilson A. Korns in office as long as possible.

"My selection of Mr Alberson is entirely defensible," said Mr. Ashbrook. "In fact, the charges made in the case are so flimsy that they are scarcely worthy of an answer. What is there wrong about it if a congress-

STRIKE OF RAILWAY TRAINMEN

Washington, July 14.——Whether a strike of trainmen and conductors of the eastern railways may be avoided was the subject of a conference at the White House today between President Wilson and Representatives of the employes and the railroads concerned.

Today's conference between the railroad men and the president concerns two bills pending in congress for the amendment of the Erdman act for means of arbitration of wage disputes. It is understood that both the Brotherhoods and the railroads are satisfied with the Newlands bill already passed.

NEWARK TRAINMEN IN CHARGE

Of B. & O. Passenger Which Crashed Into Interurban Car at Cambridge

FOUR PERSONS KILLED

And Fifteen Injured—The Train Crew is Held Blameless for Collision—One of the Victims Has Brothers and Sisters Here.

PASSENGERS SPEND NIGHT IN TUNNEL.

Ohio Electric car No. 152, in charge of Conductor Blackwell and Motorman Hager, composing train No. 36, with thirty passengers aboard, spent Sunday night and the greater part of Monday in the Black Hand tunnel, in shelter from the storm. At noon Monday the Newark dispatcher's office had no word from the car, although it was learned earlier that some of the passengers had walked to Hanover.

The car was the last eastbound train to leave Newark, and its passengers were bound for Zanesville, most of them having spent the day at Buckeye Lake park. Reports from the crew said the passengers became reconciled to their fate when the car stopped at 11 o'clock Sunday night in the tunnel, and spent the night joking over their predicament. Several sought sleep after the storm subsided, but their slumbers were troubled by mischievous passengers who couldn't sleep.

Members of the party are said to have boasted over the distinction of being the first trainload to spend the night in the first electric railroad tunnel ever built.

An effort was being made Monday forenoon to get food supplies to the passengers.

Conductor William Lamb, 21 Valandigham street and Engineer J. W. Glenn, 15 Morris street, were in charge of B & O. train No. 15 when it crashed into the trolley car at Cambridge Sunday night, killing four persons and injuring fifteen others According to statements of local officials of the railroad and opinions formed from the reports of the crew of No. 15 to division officials at Cambridge, the fatal accident could have been avoided had the trolley car crew sent flagmen each direction from the car, which it is alleged was stalled on the track.

While there were several Newark bound passengers on the train it could not be learned here Monday whether any were Newark residents, but division officials gave out the statement that no Newark people were among the injured. In fact none of the people on the train was hurt.

T. J Daly, clerk to the division superintendent, said Monday that the case was plainly one in which the railroad had no responsibility for the fatalities, because of the fact that with the power given out and no lights on the car, and with no flagmen to stop the approaching train, there was no chance of averting the accident He said the headlight of the locomotive did not show far enough ahead to prevent a full stop before the crash came according to reports.

Railroad men do not regard this as unusual, since ordinary obstructions would be sighted by track inspectors, while a train would of course carry lights.

None of the members of the crew of No. 15 had arrived in Newark up to late Monday, being detained on account of washouts along the line between here and Cambridge. Passengers on the train were detoured via Pennsylvania lines and brought into Newark several hours late on Monday morning

No. 15 is due here at 8:45 p m

Atrocious Bulgarian Outrages

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]

Salonika, July 14.—The sacking and burning of the town of Series by the defeated Bulgarian army and the accompanying outrages on women and atrocities on men were fully confirmed today in a dispatch from a well-known Greek correspondent. The retreating Bulgarian soldiers, he telegraphs, opened a cannonade with four field guns from a hill above the town on Friday. At the same time bands of Bulgarian soldiers led by their officers scoured the streets, first pillaging the stores and houses and then drenching them with petroleum and setting them alight until the greater part of the town was blazing.

The soldiers were accompanied by the notorious revolutionary Colonel Yankoff, who with other former officers of the Bulgarian army was very active in Macedonia in 1903.

The foreign consulates in Series were not spared according to the correspondent. The Austro-Hungarian consular offices were plundered and burned, Vice Consul George C. Zalatko being carried off by the marauders but subsequently ransomed. The Italian consulate also was sacked but the consul bought off the incendiaries.

The bank of Athens, the Oriental bank, the palace of the Metropolitan, the Greek synagogue, all the schools, the tobacco warehouses of the American, Austrian and German companies and the hospitals were burned after they had been pillaged.

The American Tobacco Co. alone suffered to the extent of $1,000,000. Many people were crucified, hacked to pieces or burned by the maddened Bulgarians, who committed incredible outrages on women of all ages, many of whom died from the effects.

The condition of those who escaped is lamentable, rich merchants are dying of hunger while wretched mothers are trying to find covering and food for their naked and starving children. The situation is desperate as all the pharmacies were burned down and there is a total lack of medicines for the sick and bandages for the injured.

The Greek authorities in Saloniki are rushing food stuffs, clothing and medicines to the stricken town.

PREACHER WAS DRESSED IN WHITE

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]

Chicago, July 14.—The Rev Arthur J Francis, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Englewood, defied church tradition yesterday by appearing in the pulpit dressed entirely in white. There was almost a gasp from the congregation when he stepped on the platform The preacher appeared comfortable in a temperature of 93 while many members in Prince Alberts and stiff Sunday gowns fanned vigorously

After the sermon the Rev Francis said he thought the conventional heavy black coat and stiff collar were "nonsense." He said yesterday's costume permitted him "deliver three times a better sermon," in hot weather

CLEVELAND ICE STRIKE UNCHANGED

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]

Cleveland, O, July 14—While the strikers await a charter from the International Teamsters Union at Indianapolis, the local ice strike remains at the stage reached on Saturday, when about 100 drivers and their helpers employed by the Colonial Ice company quit work because the company rejected their demand for a wage increase No other ice men have gone out and none will be asked to do so until the charter arrives and makes official all action by the strikers.

The men want an increase from $17 20 to $20 00 a week and a six day week.

SEVERE ELECTRICAL STORM VISITS CITY DOING MUCH DAMAGE

Heavy Wind Followed by Downpour of Rain Which Started at 9:45 Lasted Nearly All of Sunday Night

TELEPHONE COMMUNICATION ENTIRELY CUT OFF

B. & O. Suffers Washouts and Landslide at Coaldale—Ohio Electric Car Remained in Black Hand Tunnel All Night and Traffic on East End Was Badly Crippled—Pennsy Had Landslide at Clay Lick.

Steady wind, registering approximately fifty-five miles an hour, an almost incessant glow of lightning and rumbling of thunder, ushered in the most severe and lasting electrical storm of the season, measuring the breadth of Licking county in its pathway. Damage and destruction lay in the path of the high wind and downpour of rain which continued for practically four hours, broken only for short intervals between visits of the three distinct disturbances that passed over Newark.

Telegraph and telephone wires, trolley and power cables suffered heavily throughout the county from the succession of storms, and Licking river and its tributaries were booming currents Monday morning, rising slowly until noon.

Trees were uprooted in some of the country near Newark where the high wind had a clean sweep with its increased velocity. Bits of branches and limbs were strewn about the streets and the dawn of Monday morning presented every evidence of the hardest storm of the year, and one of the worst in several seasons.

Communication with villages in surrounding territory of the county, particularly those to the west, was entirely cut off, and meager reports of damage in the country districts are accounted for by this fact, for it is known that the damage was heavy. The Central Union Telephone company and the Newark Telephone company found their lines completely crippled in the county, and an effort made early Monday morning by the Advocate to get into communication with the principal villages proved futile.

Trouble crews were sent out by both telephone companies, and their early reports of poles and wires down indicated that extra help would be needed to hustle repairs through and put the lines in service as quickly as possible.

The Ohio Electric, the B. & O. and the Pennsylvania experienced heavy damage from water-washed track and from particles of timber strewn over their rights of way in places where they pass through wooded tracts. Track walkers were sent out at daylight to make the rounds of each respective section and report all trouble at once.

It is likely that all traffic will be more or less delayed by the storm's havoc and it may be two or three days before telephone communication reaches its normal condition throughout the county, despite the rapid work of repair crews.

UNUSUAL STORM.

The atmospheric disturbances of Sunday night and the wee hours Monday morning, put in appearance in a most unusual manner. The late evening had witnessed a fitful breeze which brought cooling relief to the sudden and extreme humidity which settled over Newark Sunday afternoon in advance of the big storms. As the night wore on clouds thickened and by 9 o'clock Newark found itself in the very center of a broad storm area, with a steady play of lightning illuminating the sky to the east, fast shifting heavy clouds rumbling stormily from the north, and equally fierce looking storms assembling in the northwest and southwest.

It was about 10 o'clock when the big eastern storm turned its force to the south, checked the oncoming wind and rain from the north and backed it up in the direction of Newark. As the big raindrops began to fall from this center of storms, the two disturbances from the northwest and southwest shifted direction so that they were headed for Newark also.

Thus it was that Newark and central Licking county received the force of three distinct storms: first that from the north, next the one from the northwest, and last, the one from the southwest. The assembled storms soon had the air thoroughly charged with electricity, carrying an almost steady glow of bright, piercing lightning, and a constant rumble and roll of thunder, which only a few times broke close enough to Newark to cause serious alarm.

News reports were necessarily meager all day Monday on account of the damage to means of communication. Only one or two nearby villages could be reached by telephone during the day, and telegraph lines along the railroads were exceptionally hard hit. West-

Motorcycle Strikes Wire Stretched Across Road Near Granville Sunday

Leon Clapham, 20, is lying in a critical condition at the Sanitarium, suffering from injuries received at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, when a motorcycle on which he was riding, hit a wire stretched across the road near Granville, indicating "no traffic"

Clapham was on the rear seat of the machine operated by Earl Beaver, both of whom live in Westerville, O When the machine struck the wire, both were hurled high into the air, Clapham landing on his head and shoulder some 25 feet from the wire He was unconscious when witnesses reached his side and blood was trickling from his nose and ears

Beaver was uninjured except for a few minor bruises and he ran to the assistance of his companion Clapham sustained a fractured skull, and a broken jaw besides other cuts and bruises.

The ambulance of Bazler & Bradley, with Dr P H Cosner hurried to the scene of the accident and the injured boy was brought to the Sanitarium where the outcome of the injuries is still in doubt

The boys left Westerville earlier in the afternoon for a pleasure ride on the motorcycle which belonged to Beaver About 1:30 they hit the wire that was stretched across the road coming to Newark and both were thrown from the machine to the concrete road and the skull of Clapham was crushed, rendering him unconscious

Following the accident Beaver accompanied Clapham to the Sanitarium and later in the afternoon he left for Westerville to advise Clapham's parents of the accident

What's In a Name?

Shakespeare wrote: "The choicest treasure mortalu times afford is spotless reputation."

Whether we are in business or in a profession, whether we are large or small, if our success depend upon our dealings with the public a fair and honest reputation is indeed a choice treasure.

To have no reputation is almost as undesirable as to have a bad one

Sometimes an enterprising manufacturer arranges to distribute his product through an equally enterprising retailer In this way two substantial reputations unite in a common cause Each strengthens and fortifies the other

The retailer who has not yet enjoyed the benefits of selling a a nationally known article and of being helped by the manufacturer's "spotless reputation" tacked onto his own is overlooking one of the finer points in the latter day merchandising.

AUTO CRASHED INTO SHOW CASE ON SIDEWALK

While turning the corner at the Mazey dry goods store Joseph Nies and John Growes, in a Ford automobile belonging to Nies in avoiding a city car and another auto that was turning the corner, crashed into a show case in front of the Mazey store when the rod connecting the two front wheels that is part of the steering apparatus became bent and all control was lost over the machine. The case which stands in front of the store has before served as a back stop to automobiles which were uncontrollable and in this case probably saved the owners of the car from crashing into the big show window in the store. The machine hit the case with great force, breaking two panes of plate glass and shattering the marble at its base. The only injury suffered was a slight scratch to Nies when his head hit the dash board where he was thrown by the compact.

The only damage to the automobile was the bending of the steering rod which was soon repaired. The damage to the show case is estimated at $50.

Today in Pugilistic Annals.

1909—Billy Papke, the Illinois Thunderbolt, outpointd Jim Flynn, the Pueblo fireman, in 10 rounds at Los Angeles. No decision was handed down by the referee, but Billy was clearly the best man, although Flynn had the advantage in height and outweighed Papke by a dozen pounds. This was the second meeting between the pair. Some months before they fought ten rounds in the same city. In that bout Papke's superiority was not so evident, and, although his friends claimed he was the victor, the Flynn supporters insisted it was a draw.

1890—Jimmy Clabby, the Hoosier middleweight, who now claims the title in that division, was born in Norwich, Conn.

1900—Willie Fitzgerald stopped Tommy Moran in 11th round at Brooklyn.

William Beck, the Boy Who Stole $100,000

New York, July 14.—Here is a typical boy of New York—or a large class in New York. He is William Beck, who was caught after he robbed his employers, a firm of Fifth avenue jewelers, of gems worth $100,000. He earned $14 a week, but he wanted to be a sport. He dressed in what he called the fashion, and aped the wealthy he noticed all day on Fifth avenue. He soon found that $14 a week would not keep him going, so he began to steal in small amounts from his employers.

Finally he determined to make a large haul. Filling a suit case with jewelry he left. But he didn't know enough to get away with his loot. He hurried out to the home of a relative in the country and was quickly caught. Then, as was expected, he wilted, and after a crying spell he confessed.

He will likely get about seven years in Sing Sing.

In one of the institutions of Paris there is a dish washing machine which has a capacity of fourteen thousand dishes an hour.

THOUGHT BODIES WERE FLOATING IN LAKE SUNDAY

With a cry that two bodies were floating in the lake a youth at Buckeye Lake Park on Sunday afternoon threw thousands of pleasure seekers into a panic. He told the startled people that two dead bodies were floating just off the new public dock east of the boat line piers.

The objects on the lake were visible from land and Manager Will D. Harris was called and immediately sent out a couple of row boats after the bodies. However, in a few minutes a shout went up from the assembled crowd but the cry was not of horror but of amusement, for the "dead ones" were two motor boat cushions which had been blown from a passing boat.

Leach Cross After Ritchie for a Fight

Leach Cross the Ghetto champion of New York, whose real name is Louis Wallach, is after Willie Ritchie for a fight for the lightweight championship. His careful fight with Bud Anderson, the young western terror, who was looked on as a comer, has placed him among those entitled to a right for the lightweight championship. It is possible that he and Ritchie will be signed for Labor Day.

But if Leach got the championship he would have to do some clever dodging to hold it. Jack Britton who has beaten him would take it away if they met. Packie McFarland too, would take it away if he could get down to the proper weight.

Cross has a heavy straight right hand punch, which carries a knockout. He also has a powerful left hook. If he lands on Ritchie he will win. But there are not many fight experts who think he would land.

WHITE SOX BUYS LARRY CHAPPELLE

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]

Chicago, July 14. Larry Chappelle, the sensational outfielder of the Milwaukee team of the American Association, was old to the White Sox of this city today. For him President Comiskey gave Outfielder John Beall, a catcher, whose name was not made public and a "cash consideration."

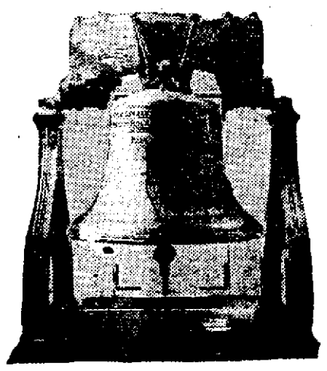

Chappelle is to report at once. He has been batting around .350 and fielding with the best of them and practically every club in the major leagues bid for him.

LIBERTY BELL AT EXPOSITION.

Famous Old Relic Will Be One of the Interesting Attractions.

Philadelphia.—Despite the dire predictions of expert metallurgists and others, it seems settled that the Liberty bell, which proclaimed the independence of the United States 137 years ago, will be sent to the Panama-Pacific exposition at San Francisco in 1915.

The crack, which was started on July 4, 1776, when the bell pealed forth the news of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, extends around one-fourth of the bell's circumference and is gradually increasing. According to Wilfred Jordan, curator of Independence hall, the crack extended two inches in a single year during the handling incidental to the founders' week celebration in this city in 1908.

The course followed by the crack is along an imperfection known to metallurgists as a "cooling strain," which offers the least resistance to the pressure of the bell's sides.

"The slightest vibration," said Mr. Jordan, "will affect the bell in time, and the continual jarring which is bound to result on a railroad, no matter how well the bell may be protected, will shorten the time many fold when the old relic will fall to pieces, if, indeed, it returns from the 6,000 mile journey whole."

MONKEY RUINS A WATCH.

Amazed Owner Stands by and Sees Timepiece Destroyed.

Spokane, Wash., June 25.—Dissecting a silver watch in the presence of a rapidly increasing crowd, much to the chagrin and displeasure of the owner, is one of the latest tricks of the monkeys at Natatorium park.

Jack, one of the monkeys which was captured a couple of weeks ago after being at large several days, was in the cage when a man with a silver watch swung the timepiece in front of the monkey for a minute. Suddenly the simian seized the watch and began to take it to pieces before the amazed owner could recover from his surprise.

The man immediately started in search of a park attendant, but before one could be found the monkey had broken the face and taken out all the wheels as well as the mainspring, with which he was playing when the attendant put in an appearance.

CENTRAL LEAGUE MAY GET CLUBS OF INTERSTATE

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]

Cleveland, O., July 14.—For the present the Interstate League will continue under its present name as a four-club circuit, with Erie, Wheeling, Akron and Youngstown as its members, it was announced at the close of a session of the club owners this afternoon. The players of the Steubenville, Columbus, Zanesville, and Canton clubs were paid up to July 15 inclusive, and some of them were turned over to the clubs still remaining in the organization.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]

Cleveland, July 14.—Magnates of the Interstate League came here today for a meeting at which the future of the league was to be decided and a successor to President Dawson, who recently resigned, elected.

Financial difficulties which have involved at least two of the clubs are responsible for rumors that the league may quit business entirely. Zanesville and Steubenville are the clubs that have not been adequately supported this season. They have definitely announced their intention of suspending.

Youngstown and Erie are said to be the only clubs in the league that have made money. Reports are being circulated that Youngstown and Erie may be taken into the Central league, which is at present only a six-club organization.

The magnates went into secret session at 11 a. m., and at 1 p. m. took a recess for luncheon. At that hour it was announced that no definite conclusion regarding the problems facing the league had been arrived at.

It was unofficially announced, however, that an effort will be made to continue the league with six clubs and that there is a likelihood that President Dawson will be asked to reconsider his resignation. In case of a continuance of his present attitude, Nate Cook of Cleveland, may be considered in connection with the office.

Those present at the session, were President Dawson, Bobby Quinn, of Columbus; E. V. Robinson, of Wheeling; Judge Smith, of Zanesville; Paul Powers of Youngstown; C. L. Harmon, of Akron; Frank Demetros, of Steubenville; Harry Low, of Steubenville; T. J. O'Connor of Erie and Herman Schleininger of Canton.

72; HAS NOT LOST A TOOTH.

Woman Has Three Small Fillings, These as a Precaution.

Battle Creek, Mich.—A woman seventy-two years old with all her own teeth and only three tiny fillings is the discovery made at an institution here.

The woman is Miss Helen Simons, a Lansing school teacher.

A physician made the discovery a few days ago when he was lecturing. He took occasion to state that few people over fifty had all their own teeth. He then asked all in the audience who were over fifty and retained all their own teeth to raise their right hands.

Miss Simons was the only one.

The incident was so unusual that she was examined by a number of dentists. They pronounced her teeth unusually good.

The three small fillings in her teeth were put in more as a preventive than because her teeth were decayed. She says they were slightly discolored and, although there was no sign of decay, she took the dentist's advice and had them filled.

Miss Simons is the daughter of Anson Simons, one of the pioneer settlers of Lansing. She is also a sister of the late B. F. Simons of that city.

ATTACKED BY SNAKES.

Virginia Man Saves Self by Rolling Into Fire, Then Stream.

Piedmont, W. Va.—While trout fishing in a mountain stream near Mountaindale George Enser, a well known business man of this city, was attacked by snakes, and before he could beat them off the reptiles had intwined themselves about him, binding his arms, hands and feet. The snakes, over a dozen in number, measured from four to six feet in length.

Enser had the presence of mind to roll down the hill into a fire that he had built to warm his breakfast. His clothing caught fire, and the snakes, scorched and sizzling, untwined from his body and escaped.

Enser, though badly burned, ran to the trout stream and threw himself into the water, extinguishing his burning clothing.

His body, arms and face were severely burned.

SINGING FISH DISTURB TOWN.

This Remarkable Fish Tale Comes From Bellevue, O.

Bellevue, O.—This town is all fussed up over certain singing fish which keep the villagers awake at nights. These fish, a variety of bull pout, live in the subterranean streams which flow under the place and, possibly becoming lonesome, come to the surface and sing.

Anyway, they gather at the surface of cisterns and quiet pools in the gathering dusk and chant in chorus what a prominent poetess of Bellevue calls a sweet, sad, haunting melody, which she likens to the moaning of night winds through lonely, brooding pines.

She also believes that the pout in the subterranean darkness keep track of each other by their cries and that the droning sounds are their callings to their mates. But plain citizens who are kept awake are beginning to cuss the gosh blamed noise.

CAT GOES TO FIRES.

Firemen's Pet Slides Down Pole and Rides With Driver.

New Orleans.—A cat that leaps from its box on the second floor of Engine Company No. 25 quarters when the alarm sounds, springs for the brass pole and with its fore and hind feet embracing the rod, slides down to the main floor and then jumps on the driver's seat of the engine, is the new mascot adopted by the firemen there.

"Willie" was found one day asleep in a soap box upstairs. The animal seemed satisfied with accommodations and was allowed to remain. A day later, when an alarm rang, the astounded members saw a ball of fur shoot for the rod and later spring for the engine.

In off days, when alarms are few, some one taps on the bell just to see the cat jump. Children in the neighborhood gather around the door, and some one makes a noise like a signal, and down slides "Willie."

Besides the pitching of Thomas, the game was featured by the hitting of Dolan and the fielding of Bradley, both playing with the K. of C.'s. The score:

Gov. Cox States That More Arrests Will Occur In The Petition Frauds

LIPSCOMB ARRESTED.

Ralph E. Lipscomb, the states star witness in the referendum petition scandals, was arrested shortly after noon Monday by Police Chief James Sheridan. The arrest was made on a w arrant issued from Mayor Swartz's court, following the filing of an affidavit by City Solicitor Roderic Jones. He is charged with forgery in connection with the falsifying of names on the referendum petitions.

Lipscomb was taken before Mayor Swartz immediately following his arrest and gave bail in the sum of $500.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]

Columbus, O., July 14.—An unconfirmed rumor was persistent in the state house this morning that three Cincinnati men will be arrested today on charges of perjury in connection with the circulation of petitions for a referendum on the Green workmen's compulsory compensation act.

At the attorney general's office the rumor was neither denied nor admitted, officials of that department declining to make any statements as to the probability of the day's developments.

Members of the attorney general force however, predict that arrests would be made today but it was not stated that they would be Cincinnati men.

Governor Cox this morning said: "We expect more developments soon There will be more arrests but I cannot say that they will be made today. It is possible that there will be arrests today but they may not come for several days."

He would not verify the rumor that three Cincinnati men were about to be taken into custody.

According to the rumor the three Cincinnati men circulated petitions in Cincinnati. It is asserted they are not of the "higher up" class, arrests of whom have been predicted by some in the near future.

The greatest secrecy is being maintained by Governor Cox and the attorney general's department relative to the names of the men who probably will be arrested in connection with the alleged fraudulent petitions. It is feared that some of those who probably will be caught in the net of investigation would find it more convenient to make their temporary residence in other localities if they were certain that they were to be arrested, it was stated today.

Governor Cox intimated today that at least one man who is likely to be charged with being implicated in the circulation of petitions has changed his abode and his whereabouts is not known.

There was a report at the state house that the accused man who probably will be called upon to tell what he knows regarding the circulation of the referendum petitions on the Green act has left that city and that neither the governor nor the attorney general's department at present knows his whereabouts.

A force of men that spent all day Sunday in the governor's office going over petitions filed from Lucas county will be at work again today copying the names of the petitions with a view of making comparisons with Lucas county poll books to learn the correctness of the signatures. Many of the men whose names appear on these petitions also will be sought for verification of their signatures.

"We intend to examine all of the petitions that have been filed," said Governor Cox today. "Examination of petitions thus far bear out our contention that none of the petitions will stand."

For the reason that many petitions are bound in one book the work of copying the names or examining them is rendered very tedious.

Assistant Attorney General John Deasy is expected to take personal charge of the prosecution of those to be arrested in Cincinnati today.

Five voters whose names appeared upon the petitions will prosecute the charges that their names were forged—Theodore Bracken, wharfmaster; Edward Bresnan, 319 East Ewelfth street; John Ast, 3339 Vine street; John Weigand, 1120 Elm street, and George Arey.

The evidence and promises of aid from these men were dug up by Mr. Charles H. Wirmel, state boiler inspectator. Wirmel says he is positive that the names of Henry Ott, labor leader, 1438 Denman avenue; John C. Beehler, 503 Boalstreet; John Sparks, 926 Clark street, and Geo C. Beehler, 503 Broal street; John forged, as the names on the petitions do not compare with the signatures upon the registration books.

In the case of Wharfmaster Bracken, his nickname "Dode" was signed to the petition.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]

Columbus, O., July 14.—That county prosecutors all over the state will be asked to assist in the prosecution of those who have forged names to referendum petitions, is the latest development in the scandal started a week ago by Colonel Joseph H. Newton of the Newark Advocate, which has resulted in the disclosure that less than 4000 of the 77,000 signatures on petitions for a referendum on the Green compulsory workmen's compensation law are invalid.

Governor Cox also has been informed by Colonel Newton that evidence has been secured that the same tactics have been pursued in securing signatures for referendum petitions on the Warnes and Kilpatrick taxation laws.

This discovery, it is believed, will result in a strict investigation of all petitions filed hereafter, and it is possible that men will be called from every county to verify the lists. It is understood that many petition peddlers have decided to give up their jobs rather than face investigation at the hands of the attorney general.

"It was the conclusion of Attorney General Hogan and myself that we ough to clean up this situation," Governor Cox said yesterday. "There is every evidence that the initiative and referendum is to be a factor in city government throughout the state, and we should do our best to safeguard it now by using the criminal laws to punish violators, as well as by the enactment of new laws which will prevent further abuses."

Doubts are expressed if the referendum petitions on the Warnes and Kilpatrick measures are filed. The reason for that doubt is the desertion of many petition peddlers and the scandal that has been occasioned by the charges of fraud and forgery on the other. From many parts of the state it has been learned that the same force of peddlers have been handling the Warnes and Kilpatrick referendum that performed so brilliantly on the compensation referendum.

Attorney General Hogan still maintains the position he took at first, that a petition so permeated with fraud and forgery as the one on file ought not to be accepted by the state for any purpose; that being fraudulent in part it is a fraudulent document, hence a nullity. If the petitions against which charges have been filed are stricken out the number of names left will be far below the number required by law to make the petition valid. If the Equity Association makes good on its threat to force the petition on the ballot the courts may deride the standing of the document. Secretary of State Graves has not yet indicated what course he may pursue.

NO ARRESTS AT CLEVELAND.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]

Cleveland, Ohio, July 14.—No arrests had been made up to 1 o'clock here today in the Green law referendum petition fraud cases. State Labor Commissioners Fred Lange continued his investigation of alleged fraudulent petitions. The executive committee of the Ohio Equity League, which had in charge the distribution of the petitions, planned to meet late today to arrange its fight against the state administration's charges of fraud.

Francis V. Brady, one of the local petition circulators, wrote to Governor Cox this morning asking that his work be investigated.

Robert and Jacob Cartwell, two country lads living east of Newark, were arraigned before 'Squire Jones Monday on a charge of assaulting Daniel W. Weaver. Their hearing was set for next Monday.

Non-Support Charge.

After seeking diligently to round up one Ray Penick, wanted on a charge of failure to support his minor child, Constable Robert Foregrave of 'Squire D. M. Jones' court had his reward for six years' search Sunday when he located his man in Columbus.

Penick was brought before 'Squire Jones Monday and was given a preliminary hearing, the result of which was that the court bound him in the sum of $500 for appearance before the next grand jury. The original complaint was filed by his wife, Dessa Penick.

Fined for Assault.

For assaulting Lettie Hoover of Jacksontown, Allen McFarlane, also of that village, was arraigned before 'Squire D. M. Jones Monday and entered a plea of guilty. He admitted striking the complaining witness after an altercation over some trivial matter. A fine of $2 was suspended upon payment of the costs, amounting to $6.

TODAY'S RACES AT GRAND CIRCUIT ARE POSTPONED

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]

Pittsburgh, July 14.—All events for the opening day of the second week of the Grand Circuit races at Brunots Park here, this morning were postponed because of heavy track.

NEWARK

senger train No. 15, westbound, struck a Cambridge and Byesville interurban car at a grade crossing a mile and a half east of Cambridge at 7:15 o'clock Sunday night.

The wreck is said to have been caused by the conductor of the traction car thinking the headlight of the locomotive was a flash of lightning and signalled the motorman to go ahead.

The Dead.

Fred Rainey, aged 24, Cambridge.
Dola Fairchild, aged 32, Cambridge.
William Carter, Middletown.
Edward McNeely, Columbus.

Fatally Hurt.

Sheldon Stiles, Cambridge, badly crushed.

The Injured.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Carter, Fort Wayne, Ind.
B. T. Claudie, Byesville.
William Burlingame, Byesville.
J. D. Farrar, Byesville.
Mike Solomon, Byesville.
Thomas Sills, Byesville.
Frank Jones, Byesville.
Mrs. Jacob Baxter and four children, Byesville.
Sherman McNeely, Columbus, not serious.

The interurban car, which runs between Cambridge and Byesville, stopped at the crossing and Conductor William Lesner went ahead to see if the track was clear. He looked up the track and saw the headlight but a driving wind and rainstorm, accompanied by almost constant lightning and thunder, prevented him from seeing or hearing distinctly and he thought the light was only lightning.

The impact came just as the car reached the middle of the crossing and none of the 30 people on the traction car had a chance to escape by jumping. The car was demolished, the wreckage, together with the killed and maimed passengers, being scattered along each side of the right of way for 50 yards.

All of those killed were in the rear end of the car, which was a closed winter coach. The engine was derailed and passengers helped in the work of rescue. The injured were taken to the Cambridge and Keenan hospitals.

Rainey's body was carried 150 feet on the pilot before the engine toppled over. He and Fairchild were instantly killed and Carter and McNeely died a short time after reaching the hospital.

Fred Rainey, listed among the dead in the Cambridge trolley collision, has two brothers and a sister in Newark. The brothers are J. L. Rainey, 137 Buena Vista street and Harry Rainey, 125 Buena Vista street, both B. & O. locomotive engineeers and the sister is Mrs. Clarence Rian of the Jutlew apartments.

Newark relatives of the dead man had not been apprised that he was among the killed until informed by the Advocate. An effort was made by them to communicate with Cambridge and ascertain particulars but all attempts were futile owing to the crippled wire service of telephone and telegraph companies.

The brothers and sister of the dead man will go to Cambridge as soon as it is possible for them to get through.

NAMES NOT IN DIRECTORY.

Columbus, O., July 14—The names of Edward and Sherman McNeely, who were killed and injured, respectively, in the Cambridge railroad accident, do not appear in the Columbus directory.

COMMISSION TO INVESTIGATE THE CAMBRIDGE WRECK

Columbus, ., July 14—Members of the public service commission planned to go to Cambridge late today to investigate the wreck near there last night and which resulted in the death of four persons and the injury to several others. Reports were that the conductor of a Cambridge and Byesville electric car mistook the headlight of a Baltimore & Ohio locomotive for a flash of lightning and signalled his motorman to proceed over the crossing. The collision with the locomotive followed.

A Gigantic Neptune.

At Monterossa, near Spezia, Italy, there is an architectural curiosity, a gigantic figure of Neptune, constructed of cement and used to support the extreme end of a terrace for a seaside villa. The house is the Villa Pastine, says the Wide World Magazine, and the statue is the work of the Signor Arrige Minerbi, a talented sculptor of Rome. The small promontory on which the villa is built presented many difficulties to the architect, but he finally succeeded in building there a very commodious and comfortable villa. The statue is wonderfully lifelike and is eleven meters in height. The body, which, like the head, is built of reenforced cement, is hollow and contains a spiral staircase. Considering the nature of the material with which Signor Minerbi had to work, he is to be congratulated on the result of his labors

Married Jolliers and Jailers

WHY don't you give your followers a little advice?" asked Marcus Aurelius of Hymen. "You simply lend them to the altar, and then you leave them to flounder. Now, if you had a small book, beautifully printed on hand-made paper and gilt edges, leather bound silk lined, initials, title page, and ornaments especially designed, two dollars, postage prepaid—"

"You're making a noise like a Roycroft advertisement," said Hymen, suspiciously. "Are you agent for any—"

"Pardon me," interrupted Marcus Aurelius. "I've brought out so many editions that once in a while I forget myself. But what I wanted to say was that little volume on that order, of Maxims on Marriage, handed to a young couple at the pyschological moment, would do them a world of good, and net you a nice profit. If I had only thought of it in time, I would have got out something of the sort myself," he concluded regretfully.

"It might be a good thing," mused Hymen.

"Should you conclude to do it, let me suggest a subject for you to especially enlarge upon; and that is, the mistake of letting marriage transform either a husband or a wife from a jollier into a jailor. Lots of people fall into this error."

"Quite true," said Hymen, reflectively. "Of course, I am not much concerned with after effects. My business is principally to get the knot tied But one might as well be an altruist. It's the fashion nowadays; and if I could help these young people with some good advice, it would be a worthy project."

"And a profitable one," responded Marcus Aurelius. "My royalties last year—but I'm getting off the track. This jollier and jailor business interests me I can't quite understand it. Human nature is a strange proposition, isn't it? Why should marriage work the transformation it does?"

"Search me," replied Hymen quickly, fearing Marcus Aurelius would hold him responsible. "I have nothing to do with that, you know."

"Oh no, not at all But it is an interesting study. You take a man now, in the engagement period, we will say. He'll jolly a girl in the most barefaced fashion. He'll take her everywhere He'll make her believe he is her devoted slave, obedient to the crooking of her finger. But after marriage, what a change! The flowers of speech fade. He sits at home as if nailed to his chair; and if he had his way I think he'd like to lock the doors, seal up the windows, and keep her a prisoner the rest of her days It's the same with the women, too," he hurried on, as he saw Hymen about to come to the defence of the men. "The flattery a woman will hand out to a man, positively makes Ananias grow pale But after marriage, she seems to forget there is such a word in the dictionary; and if a husband wants to go to the annual banquet of his college class, or a Board of Trade dinner, or something like that, her lamentations put Jeremiah on his mettle and make him seriously consider bringing out a new edition. Now a little pointed advice from you on this and other matrimonial subjects would prove popular."

"I'll think it over, Marcus," replied Hymen.

"Do," advised Aurelius, wishing however, he had included some such section in his own book, and thereby added to his prestige and profits.

Pirates Preying On Woe Of Misfortune's Victims

The greedy desires of a band of commercial pirates to make millions out of the woe and misery of victims of industrial accidents in Ohio are responsible for the corruption of the very agency devised to prevent fraudulent and vicious legislation.

When deprived, through the enactment of the Green Workmen's Compensation act, of the prerogative they so long exercised of extorting excessive premiums from employers and starving the injured into submission to their terms, private liability insurance companies inaugurated a movement to annul that law through the agency of the referendum.

The companies found no popular demand for a referendum on the compensation law, for the masses approved the act. Men were hired by the companies to go out over the state and purchase a referendum. This was simply a transfer of the activities of the parasitical crew of bribe givers, boodlers, crooks and scoundrels from the legislative halls they had so long disgraced to the homes, stores and workshops of the people.

And from this campaign has come fraud, corruption, forgery, perjury, arrests and the ruination of reputations. The deeper the probe goes the more astounding the revelations of crookedness. The same desperate crew that financed the propesed referendum on the compensation act and is responsible for all the corruption unearthed in connection with that movement is back of the proposed referendums on the Warnes and Kilpatrick tax laws.

The tactics employed to get signatures to the compensation referendum petition have been adopted to get the necessary votes to refer the Warnes and Kilpatrick tax laws—men have been employed at so much per signature. It is plausible to assume that perjury and forgery enter in the petitions to refer the two tax laws.

Governor Cox's present fight is not against the referendum. It is against fraud and corruption, and it is made to preserve and strengthen that powerful weapon which the people reserved to be used to check corrupt and oppressive legislation. The Governor's fight is notice to unscrupulous men that dishonest methods can not safely be used to initiate and refer laws.

THE VITAL ISSUE OF THE CRIME OF WHOLESALE FORGERY

A Republican newspaper asks the question whether it is "popular government" and "true and undefiled Democracy" to "disregard referendum petitions on the ground that they are tainted by fraud?" As the referendum petitions under discussion are known to be intended to annul one of the most righteous laws on the Ohio statute books and that they are "tainted by fraud" to the extent of wholesale forgery, the proper way to answer the Republican newspaper's query is to ask the question whether it is true Republicanism to attempt to defend, uphold and justify such a momentous crime?

If this is to be an issue between the political parties in Ohio, it is certain to be a vital one. There will be a grand rally of Democratic and Independent forces under the gallant leadership of Governor Cox against this crime of wholesale forgery such as has never been witnessed in the State's political history.

Before the anti-lobby law was enacted, crooked agents of favor seeking "interests" fraudulently purchased legislation in the halls of the general assembly at Columbus. After the act against lobbying was put in the statutes, these same dishonest men went out among the people to purchase referendums. The present astounding revelations demonstrate that the effort to purchase a referendum was filled with more corruption and fraud than the purchase of legislation in the halls of the general assembly.

First Things

The first newspaper in Milwaukee, the Advertiser, was issued seventy-seven years ago today. It was not the first newspaper in Wisconsin, however, that honor belonging to the Green Bay Intelligencer, which was founded in 1833. The oldest Milwaukee paper still being published, and also the oldest in Wisconsin, is the Sentinel, which was founded in 1837. When the Sentinel began its long career as the leading newspaper in its field, Milwaukee was but a frontier village, and had not yet become "famous." The Territory of Wisconsin had just been organized, and Madison founded as the capital. In the year following the founding of the Sentinel, the Wisconsin State Journal was launched in Madison. The Kenosha Telegraph-Courier began its existence in 1839, and the Wisconsin Banner and Volksfreund began publication three years later, and the Janesville Gazette in 1845. All of these newspapers antedate the first railroad in Wisconsin, the Milwaukee & Waukesha, which was granted a charter in 1847, and which commenced operation in 1851.

Uncle Walt's Philosophy

One Kind of Grief.

I want to tell the toilworn voter about my forty-horse power motor, the smoothest thing in town; no sooner do I start my spieling than he shows signs of ugly feeling, and wears a gloomy frown. As soon as possible he'll shake me; thus all my former friends forsake me, and dodge me on the street; they all refuse to hear my bragg n about my gorgeous chug-chug wagon, the car th t can't be beat. They'll stand and talk for hours together about the cheap old jim crow weather, or of the yield of peas; but when they hear my steps approaching, they know what topic I'll be broaching, and climb adjacent trees. They'll take four languages and spend 'em in thrashing our the referendum and things that have no sense; but rather than be cheered with stories about my auto and its glories they'll climb a barbed wire fence. I have the finest petrol buggy that ever yet, with music chuggy, along the road did whiz; and yet it gives me little pleasure, for when I'd tell of what a treasure the blamed thing really is, my friends disperse, my yarn's rejected; they act as though I were infected with leprosy or mumps; that's why you do not see me grinning my famous grin, so wide and winning; that's why I have the dumps.

Mr. Squirrel Was a Handsome Fellow.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

Mr. Squirrel Chose the Wrong Flower.

DADDY had told Jack not to be vain. "Vanity," he warned, "is a very dangerous thing sometimes."

"What is vanity?" Evelyn asked.

"Vanity," daddy explained, "is thinking you are a great deal nicer and cleverer than any one else."

"Well," Jack replied, "I don't think all of that."

"I hope not," said daddy. "If you did I am afraid you would get into a lot of trouble, same as Mr. Squirrel did with the bees.

"One day he was invited to come to Cissie Chipmunk's party. All the little wood creatures were asked.

"'I shall have to look my very best,' he remarked. Then he glanced into the water in the brook, where his little image was nicely reflected.

"'I certainly am a handsome fellow,' he smirked, 'though I am not the one to say so.'

"The day of the party Mr. Squirrel started out quite early. He felt that he ought to give the people at the party as much of his company as he could.

"As he trotted along he was very careful not to step into the dust or get burs in his coat.

"Presently Mr. Squirrel came to the big meadow on the other side of which was Cissie Chipmunk's home. The loveliest clump of pink clover grew by the fence. Mr. Squirrel stopped to sniff it.

"'There!' he murmured. 'Doesn't that look nice? I remember that the little boy who sits under our tree read out of one of his books that it is very nice to wear a flower in one's coat.'

"So Mr. Squirrel nibbled off one of the nice clover blossoms and was just going to wear it on his coat when something dragged its head out of the clover blossom and looked at him with round, angry eyes.

"'Buzz, buzz!' it cried. 'Come on, folks, and teach this cheeky squirrel to let us alone at meal time!'

"There was more buzzing, and in a minute a whole swarm of bees had settled down on Mr. Squirrel and were stinging him.

"He rolled over in the grass and squealed with pain. When the bees flew away his eyes were shut by swollen lids, and there was hardly a spot on his body where some angry bee had not planted a sting.

"Mr. Squirrel didn't go to Cissie Chipmunk's party. No; he went home and stayed there for quite awhile."

THE SNEAK GAME OF ROUMANIA

(Philadelphia Record.)

Of all the States of Southeastern Europe, Roumania has assumed the most humiliating position. The haggling of Servia, Greece and Bulgaria over the spoils of war does not present an inspiring spectacle; but their action assumes the aspect of respectability when compared with the method adopted by Roumania for getting a share of the swag. The others took a freebooter's chance, at least, when coming out in the open to fight for booty, which they could not agree to peacefully divide. Roumania stole into Bulgaria's house while the latter had gone out to defend it, and, thus empolyed, had been waylaid and beaten into helplessness. Robbery is criminal as well as sneak thieving, but of the two crimes the latter is the more contemptible.

Wisdom from Washington

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, July 14.—[Special.]—Many witnesses that have appeared before the investigating committees and reluctantly told or skilfully avoided telling their connection with lobbying have won the contempt of the steady listeners—those who remain all the time for one reason or another. These witnesses have often been engaged in questionable transactions, sometimes selling the votes and support of senators and members for or against measures and procedure by the administration and the courts. Of course they did not have the "goods" to deliver, but they made their buyers believe that they were dealing in job lots of senators and representatives.

The contempt has not only extended to the witnesses who told how they duped men with money seeking favors, but also to those who were duped by such palpable frauds. The whole investigation has developed reasons why men sell gold bricks, why bunko business prospers, why wildcat schemes are so easily floated. There are "suckers" everywhere willing to part with their money if the right kind of bait is used.

Bouncing the Barnacles.

After men have been holding office in Washington for sixteen straight years without fear of decapitation they become too arrogant for public service, more particularly when they have been placed in positions of authority. The greatest blessing which changes of administration bring is the elimination from the public service of those who grow to believe that they "own the government." These thoughts are inspired by the removal of a number of men by the present administration who had become barnacles and stood in the way of governmental progress.

"Manchus" Everywhere.

Congress recognized the necessity of moving men in the public service by providing that all company officers in the army must serve with their commands every four years. Secretary Garrison has supplemented the legislation by ordering all officers who have been four years in Washington back to their commands, thus making "Manchus" of all. Secretary Daniels has made a like move in the navy. So it is becoming recognized as a necessity in the fixed service to have changes, and similar changes in the civil service, where men hold positions of authority, are equally desirable.

Bacon's Business.

Senator Bacon has one regular stunt every day. He puts the senate in executive session. That seems to be the prerogative of the chairman of the committee on foreign relations. It was the most important act each day of the venerable Senator Cullom when he held the same position which the Georgia senator now occupies.

Not a Junket.

A trip by the members of the house committee on naval affairs to the different navy yards along the Atlantic coast is not a junket. They go in a navy ship, one of the small dispatch boats, but they pay their own mess bills. The government has no extra expense because the ship is in commission and the cost would go along just the same. Of course it is a pretty nice trip at this time of year.

Plenty of Time.

The house of representatives will have plenty of time to consider the currency bill. The senate will afford that opportunity while the tariff discussion is going on. And by the looks of things it will be necessary to give the members of the banking and currency committee ample time to consider the bill.

If the Democratic members really agree on the terms of any kind of bill it will be little short of a miracle. Every man has a different idea of what kind of currency legislation should be enacted. Uncle Joe Cannon once said that all that seemed necessary to make men absolutely in disagreement with each other was to make them members of the currency committee.

Questions and Answers

Is it true that the pope recently left the Vatican to visit the home of his dead sister?

Stories to that effect were sent to America, but were later denied.

Please inform me whether government employees have ever gone on strike?

Some employees on the Panama canal have struck, and certain departments of the postal service have been known to walk out, but such occurrences are exceedingly rare.

Why is Servia so anxious to have a port on the Adriatic sea? Why does Austria object?

Servia has no seacoast and can reach the ocean only by permission of the countries around her, and these countries are able to impose such duties and taxes on articles carried through their territory as practically to regulate the export trade of Servia. To escape the domination of her neighbors in the matter Servia's one ambition in the war is to obtain a seaport of her own, free from outside influence. To accomplish this Servia would be obliged to cross the path of Austria in her advance southward toward Saloniki. There is therefore a clash of interests as to the ownership of the territory desired by both.

Which is the correct way to address an envelope to a physician—Dr. John Smith, M. D., or John Smith, M. D.?

The former way is never correct. It should be either Dr. John Smith or John Smith, M. D.

Who is the richest man in the United States?

It is generally accepted that it is John D. Rockefeller, Sr., whose wealth is variously estimated at from $500,000,000 to a billion.

Is it true that the department of agriculture has produced a new animal to take the place of the mule?

The department has been experimenting with a hybrid of the mule type, using the zebra in place of the jack.

What is the length of the Panama railroad?

Forty-eight miles from Colon to Panama, with a branch three miles to Balboa.

Can you tell me anything about the impeachment of United States Senator William Blount of Tennessee?

Blount was charged with complicity in the attempt to seize Florida and Louisiana in 1797. Blount had written letters to Carey, a Cherokee interpreter, urging him to stir up the Cherokee Indians to aid him in the invasion of the Floridas.

These letters fell into the hands of United States officers, who sent them to President Adams, who in turn communicated them to congress just as that body was about to adjourn. Blount during a recess resigned his seat in the senate and was elected to the state senate of Tennessee and chosen its president. When the trial came he refused to attend, but his counsel held that the case should not proceed for two reasons—first, the constitution empowered the senate to try "officers" on impeachment charges only and a senator was not such an "officer;" second, that Blount, being no longer a member of the senate, could not be tried as such. The senate decided that it had no jurisdiction. Blount resided the rest of his life in Tennessee. No further attempt was ever made to impeach him.

What department is in charge of the census taking?

Commerce.

What is a saga?

A saga is a Scandinavian myth or heroic story—in a wide sense, a bit of ancient history or legend.

When was the campanile of St. Mark's, Venice, built, and when did it fall?

Fell July 14, 1902. Lower portion built A. D. 902. In 1510 was increased from 162 to 320 feet in height. Added weight and old age are supposed to have brought about the fall.

What is the oldest English paper still published?

The Human Procession

Pity poor Prince Adalbert, for, although he begins his thirtieth year today, and is the handsomest of the German Emperor's six stalwart sons, he is still a bachelor, and can't find a royal princess to accept his hand and heart. Princess Thyra of Denmark was the first to "give the mitten" to the sailor prince. Next he proposed to Princess Patricia, daughter of Canada's governor-general, and she refused. Princess Sophia Charlotte of Oldenburg "turned down" Adalbert and married Wilhelm Eitel-Friedrich, the emperor's second son. The Grand Duchess Olga of Russia, Princess Marie of Roumania, the reigning Grand Duchess of Luxemburg, and several others, are alleged to have joined in the boycott of Adalbert's matrimonial ambitions. Then he asked his papa if he might wed a lovely girl he had met on the tennis court, and who had favored him with many smiles, but the stern parent said nay.

Prince Adalbert, who stands third in age among the kaiser's sons, was born July 14, 1884, and has risen to be a captain-commander in the navy, being the only one of the Hohenzollern "boys" to adopt the aquatic branch of the service. All the other sons of the war lord are soldiers, except Dr. August Wilhelm, who has chosen a civil career, much to his father's disgust.

A century hence, when the ladies wear trousers and hold all the offices, and babies are created in a laboratory by spontaneous combustion, this date will doubtless be celebrated as Pankhurst's Birthday. Emmeline Goulden, now world famous as the wildest of England's wild women, was born in Manchester, England, on a Fourteenth of July, the anniversary of the storming of the Bastille. Just how many years ago that was is "shrouded in mystery." Mrs. Pankhurst, who breaks into jail so often that she barely escapes meeting herself coming out, is of revolutionary stock, for her grandfather was among those present at the Peterloo franchise riots, and her father was a radical politician. There was once a Mr. Pankhurst belonging to Emmeline, but he is dead, poor soul, these 14 years. He was a doctor, and a member of the pioneer suffrage society founded by John Stuart Mill. The leader of the militants was educated in Paris, where she mingled socially with "red republicans." Before becoming active—to put it mildly—in the "cause," Mrs. Pankhurst was a good business woman, and with her own efforts gave her son and three daughters a university education.

The orchestra will now play "In My Harem," in honor of the birthday of the Khedive of Egypt, Abbas II, who passes his thirty-ninth milestone today. Born July 14, 1874, he was educated in Europe, and succeeded to the throne in 1892. Abbas married a Circassian slave girl who had been given to him as a playmate in his youth, and declared at the time that this one wife would be sufficient, thank you. For a while, indeed, the Khedivah seemed to give entire satisfaction, bearing four children, and the harem remained without other occupants. A Hungarian adventuress was responsible for the Khedive's return to the polygamous ways of his fathers, and she has supplanted the Circassian in the affections of the dusky ruler. The Khedive's job is largely ornamental, apd when there is any real ruling to be done he lets Kitchener do it.

OLD COUNCIL TREE TRADE MARK

Good Taste and Gewgaws

A gentleman is told by the taste he displays—taste in his clothes, what he reads, what he writes, what he eats, how he lives.

A make believe is known by gewgaws. Gewgaws are the confetti, the sham, the frippery and frumpery of all that which the near gentleman puts upon or around himself.

A letterhead should be printed on paper that will convey the impression of good taste, not the suggestion of frippery and tawdriness.

Your paper stock should always be worthy of the message it conveys, the name it carries.

Old Council Tree Bond is a bond paper of elegance. A "bond" that feels good and illustrates good. It grips the person who receives your literature with the impression of your worth and it holds that impression along with the character you build upon it in the shape of printed words.

Old Council Tree Bond is an economical paper from all sides of view. Nothing is dear that is worth while and anything is cheap that will not do what is desired of it.

Old Council Tree Bond is recognized all over this country among men of "good taste" as an elegant bond. Neenah Paper Co., Neenah, Wisconsin.

FLINT BOYS WILL HAVE BUSY WEEK

Plenty of doing this week. That's the watchword of the 100 delegates and visitors here to attend the national convention of American Flint Glass Workers. The fact that last week passed off rather uneventfully is accounted for by the big amount of work before the committees in executive session, and now that reports are to be presented this week, there is likelihood of much activity.

The combined events of the week will make it notable First of all this is the week of the Gazam meeting. The ninth annual conclave an social session promises to be a star occasion Saturday and Sunday the Gazams began flocking in from West Virginia, Pennsylvania, and Ohio towns and it is expected that several hundred will be here by Tuesday afternoon to take part in and witness the annual "stunt."

Indianapolis has emphasized its bid for the 1914 convention by placing a big streamer across the High school auditorium stage, above that of the Beaver Valley boosters, bearing the words:

"Indianapolis—THE convention city —1914."

The fight for the next convention is looming up in big shape, but Beaver Valley's early start, and Indianapolis' hard boosting makes it look favorable for these two above all late comers

It is hinted that some contests may develop for some of the minor offices when the national election takes place the last day of the convention, but custom has continued the national officers and it is likely they will retain their places for another year at least

Among the Rochester, Pa, delegation of boosters that arrived Sunday were John Septon and Owen McKay, popular workers who head the booster movement.

And now, about the Gazams. The biggest of times is on tap, according to Wise and Worthy Scribe Gazabo H. W Gauding And Gauding ought to know, for he's founder of the order of Gazams.

The degree team has been practicing and the last reheasal was held in Music hall Sunday afternoon, in anticipation of initiatory work to be put on Tuesday night, when the big parade with a brass band and the Gazam drill team in uniform will be features worth seeing.

Members of the local committee have sent out requests that business men around the public square and along West Main street aid in making the celebration a success by burning red fire during the parade. An exhibition drill will be given by the uniformed team in front of Hotel Warden following the parade which is scheduled to take place between 10 and 10:30 Tuesday night.

Two hundred new members have been added to the order of Gazams this year, and three candidates will take the exemplary degree Tuesday night. The secret work will be given in Music Hall and the social session will be held in A. I. U. hall.

Sunday witnessed a gathering of 200 delegates at the ox roast given under the auspices of the local committee at White City camp. And it was some event, say the delegates.

H. W. Gauding, whose inimicable impersonations have brought him the comedy title of the, glass workers, presided as toastmaster. Nearly half a hundred delegates participated in the "stunts," some offering songs and other giving speeches and recitations

Gauding entertained the gathering when Band Leader Robert Dold turned over his baton and the musicians gave their selections to the directions of Creatore II and Sousa a la Gauding.

The Irish vs the German was a symposium of song in which the natives of Erin's Isle made a strong effort to win the musical honors from those of Dear Faderland In order to avoid possible difficulties Chairman Gauding declined to give a decision.

A feature of the afternoon's program was a speech and German dialect song by National President Rowe.

The music furnished by the Buckeye band at the ox roast was of a high order and the local band boys were the recipients of many compliments from the Flint Glassworkers and their friends The band under the management of Robert Dold, is fast forging to the front as one of the best musical organizations in Central Ohio, a title held by them for many years, and their services are in great demand.

MANY DIAMONDS IMPORTED.

Dealers In Gems Buy Heavily to Escape New Tariff.

New York.—The imports of precious stones for the last fiscal year amount to $50,000,000, according to an authoritative estimate.

The appraised value of diamonds and other precious stones which already have passed through the New York custom house totals $43,686,280, and these are record establishing figures for a similar period in any year

July imports totaled $5,547,116, and no other month since has reached these figures. In August the receipts dropped to $3,317,055 and in the remaining months in 1912 were: September, $3,850,356; October, $3,988,545; November, $3,415,529, and December, the lightest month of the year, $2,521,806.

Fear on the part of the importers that they will have to pay a higher duty on gems under the Underwood tariff bill has caused them to import large quantities of precious stones. In May the receipts totaled $4,000,327, record figures for that month In April the imports amounted to $3,805,081; March, $4,341,170; February, $4,290,436, and January, $3,809,006.

The Navy of Today.

The transformation from the sail propelled man-o'-war to the complicated mass of machinery known as the modern battleship is not one bit more pronounced than the improvement which has taken place in the personnel of the men who compose the human working parts of these great machines. Time was when the navy was looked upon by many as a sort of reform school, a last resort to which young men could be sent who were not quite bad enough to be put in jail and not good enough to roam at large. Such conditions have, fortunately, passed away, and the American navy today is composed of brains and muscle of the highest order and a personnel of which the country can well be proud.—Popular Mechanics.

Customs at Eton.

In no other community are so many sumptuary laws stringently enforced as among the boys of Eton college, England. As a rule, they wear Eton jackets or tailcoats, the latter being allowed only on boys who have attained the height of five feet five inches. Then the trousers must always be turned up and the bottom button of the waistcoat undone. Should an Etonian carry an umbrella he must never venture to roll it up.

Wanted Information.

INJURED HORSE CALLS FOR HELP

Patrolman George Abbott Tells Good Story of Animal With a Broken Leg.

You can't tell Patrolman George Abbott of the local police force that horses do not think He tells a story which proves the theory beyond all doubt He says:

"It's been my custom for several months to cut through the Hirschberger field north of the car barns, on my way to my home in Granville street. The horses and cows have become acquainted with me and I have made it a point to speak to them and acknowledge their salutes on every trip through the field

"Sunday evening was no exception to the rule and I spoke to all but one horse who was landing some distance from my usual path. He was so far away I did not think he would mind my not speaking on this occasion and I was passing on

"This animal set up an insistant whinny as a protest against by lack of sociability and I walked over to apologize I was surprised to find that the animal was apparently suffering He held one hind leg up and looked into my face with a pitiful expression.

"A closer inspection revealed the fact that the animal's leg was broken near the hip and the bones protruded through the flesh I notified Mr Hirshberger and he had the animal killed.

"I am satisfied that the horses's whinny, if it could be interpreted into English would mean a call for help. Such intelligence in a dumb brute is surely entitled to a better fate than death from a merciful bullet."

OVERHEARD on OLYMPUS
by Barbara Boyd

The Modern Marriage Proposals

ROMEO and Juliet, Heloise and Abelard, Hero and Leander, and a few other kindred spirits were sitting in the shade of a giant oak on the cool side of Olympus, enjoying the breeze that occasionally wandered through the glade, and feasting their eyes upon the sparkling blue waters that spread before them.

"Would you still like to be a glove upon my hand?" asked Juliet, cuddling up to Romeo.

"You two will never be done spooning, will you," laughed Heloise.

"Why should we?" smiled back Juliet. "Why give up a good thing?"

"That's true," said Ophelia, strolling up. "I wish I could have made Hamlet see it."

"You had hard luck," sympathized Virginia, who with Paul had just joined the group. "But the trials we all had," glancing around, "are as nothing to what girls are enduring nowadays."

"How's that!" they all exclaimed. "They don't have to drink poison—or drown themselves—or wander over the universe—" there was a babel of protest

"Perhaps not, but when one gets worked up, it isn't so hard to do something desperate. But Juliet, suppose, for instance, Romeo had said, What do you say to pairing off, old girl?' How would you have liked hat?"

Juliet made a wry face.

"Or, Ophelia, how would you have liked Hamlet to call you up on the phone, and ask you if you'd take the job of darning his socks for him in the future?"

"I'd tell him to get hole-proof," retorted Ophelia, tartly.

"Or suppose, Hero, Leander instead of swimming over nightly to tell you how much he loved you, had expatiated on how much he had in the bank, and what he was earning weekly, and what his life insurance was, and that he thought the two of you might risk it, if you were a good housekeeper."

"I'd have told him he could take his swimming exercise in some other direction."

"Just so," said Virginia "We had romance, if we didn't have realization And I'm not sure we didn't get the better of the two. There were no flaws in the brand of love-making handed out to us And if there is anything a woman craves it is love-making of the all-wool and a yard wide make But I tell you, there is precious little of that kind to be found nowadays Men are too busy for one thing, and they are too practical for another."

"They are too practical, that's the trouble," said Romeo. "I had some cares of state, as you'll admit There isn't one of the bunch here," he said glancing around "who didn't have some pretty big things to pull off of one kind or another But the beautiful and the poetical and the romantic were parts of our natures And under right conditions they blossomed out But you take the men of today, and they sneer at poetry and romance and that sort of thing They think it is a sort of weakness to show a liking for it. How often do you see a man reading a book of poems. It is all stock reports and grain statistics and bank statements."

"I'd rather drink poison than have a man talk to me about those things," said Juliet, snuggling a little closer to Romeo

"Come on, Ham," said Ophelia, "let's take a walk, you scarcely did give me a square deal, and you'll have to make up for it now."

So saying, the two strolled off through the woods Paul and Virginia went in another direction, and soon Romeo and Juliet were left alone, gazing out upon the blue sea, Romeo whispering airy nothings into the happy Juliet's ear

LOBBY PROBE STILL ON IN THE SENATE

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]
Washington, July 14.—Martin M. Mulhall, self-styled lobbyist for ten years for the National Association of Manufacturers, interrupted the Senate lobby investigation today to reply to what he declared were personal attacks on his character and his purpose of the expose in which he has become the central figure of the lobby inquiry. He denied that he had tried to sell the great mass of papers and letters which were recently published, and which now are in the hands of the senate committee.
Later he said, he proposed to introduce witnesses and letters to show that he had been engaged for months in "trying to give away" the great file of correspondence which has brought officers of the National Association of Manufacturers and labor leaders and congressmen into prominence.
Mulhall's statement was made in connection with his request that he be allowed to read a letter he had written May 16, 1913, to Perriton Maxwell, editor of Hearst's Magazine, urging him to have Wm. R. Hearst make the mass of letters public through his publications. This letter reiterated former statements that the writer did not want money but wanted to get the lobbying documents published as a "service to the public."
"I have attempted for the past two months to give them away," Mulhall told the committee. "I never had in mind the question of money I would receive for them."
"But you did sell the letters to the New York World?" asked Senator Reed.
"I would like to offer further letters and witnesses on that point," said Mulhall. "I did not sell them. I fell into the hands of a gentleman named Barry who came over to look at the letters for Mr. Hearst. I have learned since that he what is known as a newspaper tipster. The letters were given to the New York World, but later Mr. Barry came and wanted me to break the contract with the World, saying he could get $150,000 for the letters from the National Association of Manufacturers. I said the letters were not for sale; that the National Association of Manufacturers did not have money enough to buy them; that I had no proposition of blackmail in connection with them.
At this point Mulhall's statement was interrupted by the committee. He said he wanted Editor Maxwell and Louis Seibold of the New York World and other witnesses called in his behalf.
Mr. Seibold is already under subpoenae by the committee.
The house committee appointed to investigate the Mulhall charges was unable to proceed today owing to the monopolization of the witness by the senate, and is taking a recess for two weeks.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]
Washington, July 14.—Martin M. Mulhall, who acknowledges himself to have been one of the chief lobbyists for the National Association of Manufacturers was on hand today when the senate investigating committee met prepared to make additional disclosures concerning the alleged activities of "big interest" in shaping legislation.
It was reported shortly before the committee resumed examination of the witness that the manufacturers' organization had on the way a large number of letters which it was proposed to hand the committee for use in its cross examination. These letters were said to be communications from Mulhall to various officers and directors of the organization. It was understood the letters were to be used in an effort to establish a motive for Mulhall's present revelations.

Beer Bottle Chokes Pelican.
Newport Beach, Cal.—A large gray pelican was picked up here dead with a beer bottle tightly wedged in its throat. The bird from its manner of flight evidently was in distress. It was seen to plunge into the surf, and when it did not rise again R. J. Shafer, a fisherman, waded in and brought the dead bird ashore.

Winfield, Kan.—An egg with a double shell is a curiosity that is being exhibited by R. T. Richardson of this city. The outer shell is as large as a turkey egg, which it somewhat resembles. ## Secretary Daniels Plans to Make Sea Trips Pleasant.

VACATION CRUISES FOR ALL

Would Interest College Students and Eventually Build Up Citizens' Naval Reserve, Composed of Men With Practical Experience.

Washington.—If you are a man and are between the ages of seventeen years and thirty-five years and are from five feet two inches to six feet one inch and weigh in proportion, with a chest measurement of from thirty-two to thirty-six and three-quarter inches, dependent upon your age, height and weight, Secretary of the Navy Daniels has a job for you. Moreover, he has declared that if you pass all these qualifications and want the job he will give you as fine an opportunity to see the world as you could get anywhere on board a floating home that was built for from $5,000,000 to $20,000,000.
Secretary Daniels has some advanced views regarding the way the navy of the United States ought to be run, and he is especially "strong" for reforms that will attract and hold the best class of men and boys the country can provide for the navy. He believes the navy should be made attractive to the young man, the college graduate, the schoolboy and to every man and boy who comes up to the physical qualifications mentioned. Perhaps the most radical of the reforms Secretary Daniels would like to see effected is his pet plan to change the rules of enlistment so that it would be possible for college men to accept the hospitality of the navy and cruise as man-o'-war's men during the vacations. He would have it so that the college men who have a leaning for travel during their vacations could take such cruises and acquaint themselves with the duties of a sailor.
Secretary Daniels, explaining his project, declares he believes every young man should have a "working knowledge" of the navy. If this were the case, he said, the rank and file of the navy would be raised even higher than it is now. The secretary's plan is virtually the creation of a volunteer citizen reserve. He would have conditions such that in case of necessity there would be thousands of young men as useful as they were willing to go behind the big guns and uphold the prestige of the United States navy. Although he is an avowed "man of peace," he believes in maintaining a high degree of preparedness, and it is his aim to educate the young men so that the navy can be placed on a war footing at very short notice.

At the present time figures at the navy department show the navy is approximately 1,700 men short of the authorized enlistment number. Under the Daniels regime every effort will be made to fill these vacancies with enlisted men, as well as to qualify as many more as possible who are now in civilian life for possible emergency work. This is one of the reasons for the attractive cruise which has been mapped out for the Atlantic fleet this year. The coming cruise will be in the Mediterranean, where every port of moment will be touched and the sailors given ample opportunity to spend many hours on shore. Similar cruises are being mapped out for each succeeding year, and while Secretary Daniels is at the head of the navy department there will be no fear, he declares, of Jack tar having too much work and no play.

Rich, Lives In Institution.
Wichita, Kan.—Although accredited one of the richest men in Sedgwick county, Henry Mulline, aged ninety-nine and a Kansan since 1868, is living at the Sedgwick home, a charitable institution. Mulline has money to pay his way, and he prefers the home that he may be with old men, he declares. "The new way of living is too fast and hypocritical for me," he said.

Ohio's 1913 state Government will cost taxpayer more than $10,000,000.

WHO MAY PRAY; WHO MAY NOT

Prayer Not a Duty; a Privilege, Says Pastor Russell.

JEHOVAH A GREAT KING.

Sinners May Approach Him Only in His Appointed Way — "No Man Cometh Unto the Father but by Me." Formalistic Prayer Valueless—Prayers Which Never Ascend to God—Rejected Prayers—Prayers of Praise and Thanksgiving—Prayers of the Saintly Are Limited.

Springfield, Mass., July 13.—Today opens an eight day Convention of the INTERNATIONAL BIBLE STUDENTS ASSOCIATION. The attendance is large. Many speakers of great ability are to give addresses. The Convention seems to be wholly for the purpose of discussing the teachings of the Bible, and for cultivating Christian fellowship. The program calls for four discourses per day, and so earnest are the delegates that apparently few will miss a service. Pastor Russell was one of the speakers of today. We report his discourse on Prayer, from the text, "Mine House shall be called an House of Prayer for all people."—Isaiah 56:7.

The Great Teacher's words applied to the Jewish Temple, typical of the Spiritual Temple of the future. The typical Temple had its various courts and different divisions of worshipers. Some might come near and some not so near to the Holy of Holies, in which the Shekinah glory represented Jehovah God. Only the priesthood had access to the Most Holy; only the Levites were permitted in the inner court; then came outer court divisions, some of which were for Gentiles.

Thus did God represent in the type conditions not of the present, but of the future. The antitypical Temple has not yet been built. St. Peter describes it as the Church in glory. He tells that Christ is its chief Corner Stone, and that all the faithful saints of God are living stones, now being chiseled and polished for places in that glorious Temple of the future.

As the stones of Solomon's Temple were all shaped and completed before the construction was begun, so the Church of Christ will be constructed at the end of this Age, after the "living stones" shall have been hewn and fitted for glory. As the stones of Solomon's Temple were so perfectly fitted to their places that they all went together without the sound of a hammer, so will it be with the construction of the Church, which will be accomplished by the power of the First Resurrection—"changed in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye"; for "flesh and blood cannot inherit the Kingdom of God."—1 Corinthians 15:50-52.

As in the type, so in the antitype, the finished structure will be followed by a Divine recognition. The Temple will be filled with the glory of the Lord, and be thus marked as His dwelling place for all time. Thus will be established—very soon, we trust—God's antitypical House of Prayer, wherein and whereby all nations, peoples, kindreds and tongues may come into fellowship with their Creator, and have communion with Him through His appointed agencies

Only Consecrated Priests Pray.

When I refer to consecrated priests, do not misunderstand me to mean the clergy of any denomination nor of all denominations. The Bible recognizes no clerical class, but declares, "All ye are brethren. One is your Master, even Christ." (Matthew 23:8.) For more than eighteen centuries God has been calling out from amongst men the Royal Priesthood class. Jesus, their High Priest, was first called to suffering and then to glory, and His foot step followers have since been invited to suffer with Him, that they may also reign with Him.

Through this Royal Priesthood, the world of mankind in the future will have access to God. Now none but this Royal Priesthood have access, and they through their great Head, the High Priest of their profession. These, by faith, have access to God in prayer at the Golden Altar of Incense. These see the light of the Golden Candlestick and partake of the holy Bread of Divine Truth.

Others may approach God in the sense of being interested in Him, desiring to do His will, and of seeking to co-operate with the Royal Priesthood and to render service to the Lord's cause. The influence of such an approach toward God is always beneficial, uplifting, cleansing. But the point we are emphasizing is that all such approach to God stops short of the privilege of true prayer to Him—of true relationship to Him as children.

None may pray, "Our Father, which art in Heaven," except those who have approached God in His appointed way—through Christ—and who since have been forgiven, and inducted into the family of God by a begetting of the Holy Spirit. The common concept of the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man is wholly unscriptural, and sets aside entirely the Savior and His important work as Advocate for the Church in the present, and as Mediator elect for the world in the future.

Wrong Views Respecting Prayer.

Nearly all Christian people in the past have discerned the subject of prayer very indistinctly. Sinners have been urged to pray; moralists, who have never accepted Christ as their Savior, have been chided for not praying. In a general way the impression has been given to the world that God is very anxious to have some recognition on the part of humanity, and will be glad to be approached by anybody at any time. How strange a mistake!

Was it not God who denounced sin and placed the penalty, or curse, of death upon the sinner, and cut off the sinner from fellowship with Himself? Has He changed? Will He ever change? Was not the statement that "God heareth not sinners" a correct one?—John 9:31.

The Church Has an Advocate.

God's arrangement whereby His consecrated people may approach Him acceptably is clearly stated. "We [the Royal Priesthood] have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the Righteous," (1 John 2:1.) But before the Redeemer of men will become the Advocate for any, certain terms and conditions are laid down. Those approaching are first of all reminded that "no man cometh unto the Father but by Me"—the Advocate. And upon inquiring respecting the terms upon which He would be their Advocate, we are admonished that He serves only those who become His disciples. Inquiring the terms of discipleship, we receive the answer, "If any man will come after Me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow Me." —Matthew 16: 24.

Under these conditions the poorest and the meanest of humanity have the priyilege of approaching with courage the Throne of Heavenly Grace to obtain mercy, and to find grace to help in every time of need. (Hebrews 4:16.) But equally certain is it that none others have access to God. "Neither is there any other name given under Heaven or amongst men whereby we must be saved" from our fallen condition, than the name of Jesus.

Perhaps there is something revolutionary in this thought that, while all may worship in the sense of bowing down and showing reverence to the Almighty, none but the consecrated followers of Jesus have any assurance whatever of the Divine supervision of their affairs. And none but these have any authority for coming to God in prayer.

One exception to this rule should be here stated; namely, that the children of consecrated believers, while they are still immature of judgment, have a standing with God through their relationship to their parents. St. Paul makes this very evident in his declaration: "The unbelieving husband is sanctified by the wife, and the unbelieving wife is sanctified by the husband, else were your children unclean, but now are they holy."—1 Cor. 7:14.

The translation of this text slightly beclouds the Apostle's thought, which is that where either of the parents has become a disciple of Jesus, the child stands related to God, regardless of the standing of the other parent. Such children may participate in worship and in prayer. But this relation ship manifestly terminates shortly after the child shall have come to a personal knowledge of its responsibilities. Thereupon it must make a personal covenant with the Lord, or have its standing with the rest of the world.

And that standing, be it remembered, does not mean liability to eternal torment. It merely means alienation, separation, from God and from His special care and providences in the present time; for the Divine arrangement is for the ultimate blessing of mankind through the Messianic Kingdom—through the Temple of Glory and its Royal Priesthood glorified, in its Kingdom power for a thousand years.

Might the Truth Discourage?

Some might be inclined to say, There are millions of people who, with more or less formality, approach God in prayer daily. Should we not fear that after a truthful presentation of the facts these would be discouraged? Our reply is that the whole responsibility for the Divine Plan rests upon its Divine Author, who says, "He that hath My Word, let him speak My Word faithfully." Indeed, the preaching of the Truth on this subject may bring many indifferent ones to the point of decision, and thus greatly benefit them.

Have we not been telling the world in general that there is practically no difference between God's people by consecration and the children of this world? Have we not been misleading them in this respect? Is it not high time that they were told the truth on this, as well as some other subjects?

A gentleman who attended my preaching in London met me the following day and said, "Your discourse did not at all encourage me; indeed, it greatly discouraged me. I had for years thought of myself as a Christian, being a member of the Church of England. I participated in its service, but without ever having had the thought that I could not be acceptable as one of His children, nor as a member of the Church whose names are written in Heaven, except by the making of a full consecration of my life to the Lord. I had some serious thoughts on my homeward way."

We replied to the effect that faithful is the wound of a friend; and that if our shaking of his self-confidence in a formalistic piety should result in bringing him to a true consecration to the Lord and to a membership in the Royal Priesthood beyond the veil, he would thank us eternally therefor. In any event, he was a witness that our duty had been faithfully performed.

There is a great deal of sleepiness, drowsiness, amongst Christian people. Many have mixed for themselves theological potions, in which a form of godliness combined with worldliness is producing a lethargy as respects good Bible study, Christian character and the service of God as His ambassadors. We would like to awaken these, to have them know that they are trifling with the Gospel call, and unless they take the decisive step they will be forever outside the High Calling and privileges of the Church.

For What May Saints Pray?

Not only is the privilege of prayer confined to the consecrated people of God, "sanctified in Christ Jesus," but even these are restricted in respect to what things they may properly pray for. St. James calls attention to the fact that many prayers are entirely unheard, because the petitioners "have asked amiss"—for the gratification of their own selfish desires.

The Master tells us the conditions upon which we may have the assurance of the Divine response. He says, "If ye abide in Me, and My words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you." (John 15:7.) At first this appears to give God's consecrated people the right to ask for anything and to expect everything.

But note again the conditions: (1) "If ye abide in Me." Those who are in Christ are New Creatures; to them "old things have passed away, and all things have become new." Those who have thus come into membership in the Body of Christ, the consecrated Church, have given up their own wills, have set aside earthly aims and prospects, and have accepted instead the will of the Lord and the Heavenly hopes and prospects set before them in His Word. These, therefore, do not wish to ask for earthly things, but merely to request the Heavenly things, which would assist them in making their calling and election sure.

Then comes the other consideration: (2) "If My Words abide in you" This signifies that the petitioner not only has a new will—the will of the Master—but that he has sought to know what that will is, as expressed in the Master's words, or teachings. And all such pupils in the school of Christ are taught of Him and guided into the understanding of the Scriptures, hence are able to rightly divide the Word of Truth, to appreciate the promises which belong at the present time to the Church, and to differentiate these from the promises for the world in the next Age. These know what to ask for, and having the Master's spirit, would ask for nothing else. Thus all their petitions, being for spiritual things promised in the Scriptures, would have a rich fulfilment.

"Pray Without Ceasing."

When St. Paul urges the consecrated Church to "pray without ceasing" and "in everything give thanks," he evidently does not refer to formal prayers, but rather to that prayerful attitude of the heart which under all circumstances and conditions looks to God—either for wisdom and guidance to do His will, or with thanksgiving and praise for blessings received and prayers answered.

Nothing in the Apostle's language indicates that the Lord's people should be always on their knees, or on the other hand that they should never go upon their knees, but merely that they should uplift their hearts to God at all times and in all of life's affairs. The priests in the type offered the morning and the evening sacrifices before the Lord, and so the Royal Priesthood surely desire that every morning and every evening Divine mercy and blessings should be acknowledged with thanksgiving and appreciation.

Not only so, but parental duty properly requires that the Christian parent, so far as possible, should worship with immature children for whom he stands as secondary priest, and that he should offer with these thanksgiving and praise, and petition for wisdom and guidance to the knowing and doing of the will of God.

The Church of Christ, the Royal Priesthood, is a special family of God. "All ye are brethren. One is your Master," and "One is your Father." Whenever these meet, worship and praise should constitute a part of their acknowledgment of the Heavenly Father. Hymns of praise should properly be considered prayer, a united worship, in which all may participate. But if any of the Lord's family, the Royal Priesthood, have gotten into sin, he should hesitate to take any public part in prayer or worship. He should consider himself, because of his enlightenment, to be one of the wicked, and hearken to the message, "Unto the wicked God saith, What hast thou to do to declare My statutes, or that thou shouldest take My covenant in thy mouth? seeing thou hatest instruction and castest My words behind thee." —Psalm 50:16, 17.

Ah, what changes would be wrought in Christendom if this principle were understood and applied! Many costly choirs of unbelievers would be dismissed. The congregational singing would be much behind its present musical standard for a time at least, but much more acceptable to God. Who can dispute that some time the Christian standard will be lifted to a much higher level than at present? Who can dispute that the effect would be one of great spiritual refreshment and blessing to those really desirous of knowing and serving the Lord?

And who would dispute that the effect upon the worldly-minded would be beneficial also? It would do them good to know the truth that they are without God and have no hope, because they have not come into relationship with God through the great Advocate, whose only terms they have thus far rejected. Might we not hope that, rightly informed, many of these, now indifferent, would become saints indeed?

Darken Gray Or Faded Hair With Sage Tea and Sulphur

It's Grandmother's Recipe for Dandruff and Restoring Color to Hair.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also cures dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays skilled chemists do this better than ourselves. By asking at any drug store for the ready-to-use product—called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy"—you will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Some druggists make their own but it's usually too sticky, so insist upon getting "Wyeth's" which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is the best remedy for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and to stop falling hair.

Folks like "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur" because no one can positively tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly, says a well known down-town druggist. You dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This requires but a few moments, by morning the gray hair disappears and after another application or two is restored to its natural color and looks even more beautiful and glossy than ever. # NEWARK MAN ADOPTED BY SIOUX INDIANS

"FLYING HORSE" NAME GIVEN TO H. C. JEWETT AT BIG REUNION

Thousand Indians Enjoy Powwow And Kennedy Children of Newark Witness Event.

H. C. Jewett, a former Newark man now living in Aberdeen, S. D., has another name attached to his identity, that of Flying Horse, which was given him last week upon his adoption into the tribe of the Sioux at the annual celebration of of the Standing Rock Indians at Bull Head Station.

The Aberdeen News gives the following account of the incident:

Mr. Jewett, accompanied by his son, Harvey C. Jewett, jr., Barrett and Angela Kennedy of Aberdeen, S. D., and Francis and Angela Kennedy of Newark, Ohio, went to McLaughlin last Wednesday where they witnessed the celebration the Standing Rock Sioux hold each year at Bull Head station, their favorite meeting place on the reservation.

There were many 1,000 Indians encamped on the grounds, their tepees being lined up in a hollow square in the center of which the dances and games took place. Five hundred more Indians were expected to arrive there Thursday to spend the Fourth, the one day out of the year that the Indian agent will allow the red men to engage in their tribal dances, the strenuousity of the dance being too fatiguing and fatal.

The celebration this year was in charge of Chief One Feather and Chief Long Elk, two of the leading Sioux chieftains on the reservation. Head Farmer de Rockbrain, a prominent French-Indian, is the agency representative in charge of Bull Head and under his eye the celebrations are carried on until the Indians have in his opinion had enough, when he will order them back to their allotments to wait until the next big event.

This year the celebration was unusually large owing to the fact that the Indians had but recently received their $40 per capita and were out for a good time if they had to spend every cent of it.

Mr. Jewett went out to the celebration in order to show the children with him the truly live Indians they had read about, but he found the Indians almost as interesting as the children did. He had prepared himself for the trip by taking along several hundred cigars for the old chiefs, many of whom he is acquainted with. He also donated liberally to the collection taken for the Fourth of July celebration.

In the course of a powwow preceded by the beating of drums and tomtoms, Chiefs Long Elk and One Feather arose to their feet and harangued the crowd in great style, at the conclusion of which a shout arose from the rest of the Indians seated cross-legged in a circle on the ground. The chieftains then advanced to where Mr. Jewett was seated and announced that he had been chosen as a brother of the Sioux and had been named Flying Horse, after a renowned Indian chief now deceased.

Harvey Jewett, jr., took a large number of pictures while attending the celebration, many of which are excellent. One of them shows a large number of Indian girls just home from college at Carlisle and other prominent schools about the country. They are riding horses and are dressed strictly according to elite Indian fashion with tight fitting corsets, heavily beaded leggins, moccasins and gauntlets, wide Stetson hats, etc. Within another month they will discard these symbols of civilized life and don a loose fitting wrapper and a shawl and melt into the inconspicuous group of squaws.

Celebrations similar to the one held at Bull Head, although not as large, were held at Wakpala and other points on the reservation.

Multimillionaire Has Adopted 300 Poor Children

Tulsa, Okla., July 11.—Charles Page, reputed to be worth $5,000,000, has adopted 300 poor children and has perfected plans to swell the number to 1,000. He has provided that at his death the bulk of his estate will go toward helping poor children, and maintaining a home which he has established at Sand Springs, a suburb of Tulsa.

Page has financed a street car line which runs from the village to the home and each day the poor children who do not live at home are gathered up and taken out there, where they are taught in one of the best schools of the state.

He has also provided that any boy or girl who may wish a college education after completing the course in his school can elect the institution that he wishes to attend and Page will defray all expenses.

Connected with the home he runs a farm and canning factory where the boys and girls can work in off hours and every branch of manual training and domestic science is taught by skilled teachers.

Minerva and Mars On War

"I HAD a bad dream last night," said Minerva, in reply to a question from Mars as to why she looked so pale.

"You should not accept so many invitations from Bacchus. That new brew of his is no milky way fizz."

"That's where you lose out," replied Minerva, scornfully. "My dream had nothing to do with Bacchus. It concerned you."

"Me!" exclaimed Mars, interested. "Let's hear it, old girl."

"No, go out with you either, as your contemptible trade."

"Oh, you can't get a rise out of me, Min," laughed Mars. "I've heard you talk that way before. You've got a grouch on because of this Balkan business and Mexico and a few other little scraps. I must admit, business has been pretty good in my line lately."

"Good!" sniffed Minerva. "How can you use that word in connection with anything you have a hand in. It was the awfulness of war that I dreamed about last night. And the picture stays with me."

"Take a pinch of this anaesthetic powder. It is warranted to put you to sleep painlessly. It will take the bad taste of your dreams out of your mouth. It is the latest invention of mortals for mitigating the horror of the battlefield. Mortals do amuse me. In the good old days, we fought for the joy of the scrimmage. But now, what with the red cross and painless surgery, and mental healing, and this new powder to make you unconscious before you know you are hurt, a fight is a regular feather bed performance."

"Brute!" exclaimed Minerva. "There isn't a spark of human feeling about you. If you could once suffer as I suffered last night even in a dream perhaps you might resign as cabinet member with the war portfolio."

"Let's hear your dream."

"I thought the men fighting were ranged in a line facing each other. The signal to shoot was given by a man standing between the two lines."

"Did he want to commit suicide?" inquired Mars.

"Each man," went on Minerva, ignoring the question, "while waiting for the signal took aim at the man opposite him in the line, and such looks as were on the countenances of the men as they thus crouched facing each other waiting for the signal to fire, I never saw on any human or inhuman face. I can't get those expressions of hatred and malice and murder out of my mind. Off to one side, was a little wooden shack in which were the wives and mothers of the men. At last, the man gave the signal. Every gun blazed. Awful shrieks came from the house where the women were and when the smoke cleared away, all the men, but the leader, were dead and several of the women had also been killed. And all for what?—that the man who was leader might be king of something or other, and wear purple and have people pay him homage. The leader stood there and gazed at the wreck. Some of his best friends had been killed. For a few minutes the enormity of what he had done, I think, came over him, and he realized how empty life would be without these friends and companions. And then he thought of his throne and the glory and power, and he turned his back on the wreck and walked away. But what satisfaction is it to a real man to sit on a throne and have people bend the knee? That's all flub dub these days."

Jove, who had paused to hear the conversation, drew his royal robes about him and glanced keenly at Minerva. He wondered if she was making a jab at him.

"There has to be some head," he said with dignity, "to maintain order in a realm."

"But why go to such lengths merely to become a policeman," rejoined Minerva tartly.

OFFICER BURKE ASSIGNED TO NIGHT WORK

Officer Charles O. Burke, who was reinstated in the police department of the city by a decision handed down by Judge T. J. Fulton Saturday, reported for duty to Chief Sheridan the same day but was not assigned to duty until Sunday when Chief Sheridan placed him on the night force.

At the time when charges was filed against Officer Burke by Director of Safety Collier the former was serving as day patrol in around the public square, which duty he had filled for the past four years. No reason was given for the change to the night shift and was not stated whether the reinstated patrolman would be restored to his former daylight position.

Beautiful Salvation Army Lass Attracts Crowds Nightly With Rich Contralto Voice

Romantic and permeated with tales that would excite the compassion of the most hardened criminal or the most brutal ruffian is the career of Captain Martha Watkins, the beautiful Salvation Army girl who sings on the streets of this city. Miss Watkins has been surrounded with all the horrors of the slums of New York City, once being trapped in the house of an Italian, who had evil intentions toward her. She saved her life only by the heroic use of a hat pin that she fortunately had in her possession. This brave girl in her career as a Salvation Army worker has in all probability the most exciting recorded experiences of any of the fair adventurers of the present day or of the fabled characters of mythology.

A family in the most desperate of conceivable circumstances was once rescued from starvation, from the slums and its reaking immoralities by the fearless girl who braved the dangers that the most hardened detectives refused to imperil their lives by investigating.

At the age of 20 Miss Watkins was sent by her parents to the Salvation Training Home in New York City to matriculate in the course preparatory to receiving the rank of Lieutenant of the Army. At the outset Miss Watkins was placed on the investigation committee which patrols the slums and the segregrated districts where humanity develops its worst vices and the poor and the needy demand the constant attention of those who have made it their life work to uplift and inspire fallen humanity. It was in this part of New York, that the heroine of this story encountered the rapacious Italian who's evil designs so nearly cost her life.

All the life history of Miss Watkins has been identified with the Salvation Army. Since earliest childhood her environment has been that of a girl whose parents were engaged in the furtherance of the Salvationist philosophy and in lifting families and individuals from degraded places to ones of respectability.

The training school which she attended is in the heart of the city and yong men and women of social position from all over the country sacrificed wealth and the pleasures of life to launch in the noble work by which thousands of humanity are saved. In the six months course those enrolled study oratory, the bible, vocal music, economic conditions of the poor whom it is their mission to ameliorate. Those enrolled begin active work in the slums and daily canvass parts of the city which are assigned to them. In this way they not only fit themselves for places which they later occupy, but earn their livins and give to New York one of its greatest aids. While at the training schoool 586 homes were visited personally by the girl who at this time was only 20 years of age. To families to whom she knew to be in need she distributed 1196 tickets for meals and the necessities of life. Accentuated by the pathetic circumstances of this nature the brave girl accomplished deeds that when but three months out of the training school she received promotion to the rank of captain and was next to the highest officer in the city of Cincinnati.

The case of an Italian family making their residence in a tenement house in a notorious district once prompted the girl to venture into the neighborhood. Of a stalwart and malignant looking man from Italy she asked if the family that was sought resided within. To her innocent question the brute first answered in the negative but after she had proceeded along the thoroughfare for some distance the rapacious ruffian prompted by nefarious and vicious design called to her in his soft Italian dialect that he was mistaken and that the family she desired to see did live in the house and that it would please him very much to show her the part of the house in which the family lived. Once the girl had crossed the threshhold, the door was locked by the same hand that had beckoned to her in the street and she was face to face with a physically powerful criminal before whom the average woman would have melted like ice. The man approached her as soon as he had locked the door and began to lay violent hands upon her. The seemingly helpless woman had anticipated the intention of the man and was prepared to resist any attack. Drawing her hat pin she immediately attacked him and soon succeeded in forcing her way to the door where the noise attracted the attention of passersby and the door was broken in and the girl rescued by the people who fairly idolize the army women because of their efforts in their behalf.

Since this episode the girl has been an interesting figure of the street and has been located in Cincinnati where she received t he rank of captain. Her life since leaving Cincinnati has been divided between several of the minor cities of the state. Two months ago she came to this city and since that time has been actively engaged in the daily routine of the Salvation work. Before coming to Newark, for several months Miss Watkins was much in demand in different cities of the country. She has spent her time in traveling in different parts of the country and has been closely associated with the Booth family on different occasions

Her rich contralto voice, one of her principal charms, may be heard any afternoon or evening, ringing out on the public square where the Army holds daily service. She is an expert with guitar and cornet and because of these musical traits has had offers that would give her an opportunity to see the world.

YOUTH FINED FOR STEALING BOY'S BICYCLE

"I only wanted to practice riding," said Paul Yockbit, a Slav youth not more than 15 years old, when he was arraigned before Mayor Swartz Monday morning charged with stealing a bicycle from in front of the Lyric theater in South Third street Saturday night. Bystanders saw the lad take the wheel and walk off with it. It was the property of Fred Thurner, cement contractor, who had loaned it to another man. Paul was given a fine of $5 and costs which he paid, and warned that another offense would result in a trip to the county jail or the penitentiary.

LIVELY SESSION IN POLICE COURT MONDAY MORNING

With the names of nearly 25 victims on the police court slate, Mayor Swartz had the biggest Monday morning business for several weeks. Offenses ranging from that of wearing a slit skirt to plain loitering made up the charges. Myrtle Smith, colored, operating a resort along the railroad, was brought in with five of the inmates for violation of police regulations. The proprietor was fined $10 and costs and the girls $5 and costs each. In the case of the girls, the fine was suspended but the costs were paid. Seven drunks, four for investigation and loitering and one man charged with being drunk and insulting women drew the usual fines. Two of the victims were unable to appear before the court because of their condition. They required the services of a physician Sunday as they were "seeing things" in the prison.

An Active Historical Society.

By holding monthly meetings at the home of different members, the Clark county Horticultural society, has grown to be a decided factor in the progress of that community. Although the members are all busy men and women, they find it profitable and enjoyable to come together at these occasional gatherings to listen to a program that has been arranged ahead of time by a special committee. Often a dinner is served in the open at this time of year. The membership and work of the society is growing and an idea of the scope of their work can be gotten from the number of standing committees which include apiary, birds, poultry, garden, farm crops, live stock, small fruit, vineyard, orchard orchard planting, flowers, forestry, marketing and floral exhibits.

A SLIT SKIRT FAILS TO PASS MUSTER HERE

It costs the sum of $9 in Newark to wear a slit skirt, which in the opinion of the local police department, displays too much loud silk hosiery. This fact was impressed forcibly upon the mind of Mrs. M. Livingston, aged 23, of Cleveland, this morning in police court.

Mrs. Livingston was arrested yesterday while walking on the street wearing an exaggerated model of the slit skirt. Chief Sheridan told Mayor Swartz, when the woman was arraigned, that the slit was open to a point above the knee. There was a startling absence of any protecting undergarment, according to the chief's statement.

Mrs. Livingston wore the offending skirt and beneath the "slit" appeared a small section of a silk petticoat, which was conspicuous by its absence Sunday.

The skirt was buttoned almost to the hem as she sat before the court and it would have passed muster even before the critical eye of Representative Louis H. Campelle of Cincinnati, who asked the legislature to put the lid on the extreme styles affected by Ohio women.

The charge against the woman was "disorderly conduct—to wit, indecent exposure." When the charge was read, the young woman proudly displayed the skirt and said that she "had only walked on the street with this skirt on." When the chief's explanation was offered the statement was made that 25 witnesses could be called to tell of the sensation it created. The woman pleaded guilty and friends paid the fine of $5 and costs.

FARM HANDS VERY SCARCE AT MARION, O.

Marion, O., July 14.—Because farmers declare it is impossible to secure harvest hands, it has become necessary for the wives and small children of many Marion county farmers to enter the fields and assist in harvesting the oats, wheat and making hay.

Chief McDonough and Captain Bond recently made a trip through the southern part of the county and saw several instances where women were driving teams in the field, cutting the ripened grain, while small children were engaged in stacking the wheat and oats. The officers stopped at several of the farms and were informed that it was almost impossible for the farmers to secure hands. "We are willing to pay $3 a day and board," said one farmer, "and even at that price we are unable to secure farm hands."

According to English figures, 620,000,000 cubic feet of illuminating gas were made in the world last year, requiring sixty million tons of coal.

ern Union and Postal offices in Newark reported their lines in fair condition.

SECOND STREET CUT OFF.

The incessant rain caused the waters of the South Fork to rise rapidly and early Monday morning, the temporary bridge over this stream at Second street, was carried away. Only twenty-five feet of the structure remained standing and this was swung several feet out of position.

As a result of the washout, residents in the Second street hill district found themselves cut off from communication with the city, until the police department was notified of conditions.

Police Chief Sheridan ordered one of the police boats sent to the troubled point and manned by one of the bridge construction men, people were ferried across the stream.

As soon as the waters receded sufficiently, the bridge men immediately started to work replacing the temporary structure and it is believed it will be ready for use within 24 hours.

Besides carrying away the temporary bridge in South Second street the freshet took with it most of the superstructure erected by the bridge contractor now building the new concrete bridge at this point. This will add considerable to the work of the contractors. Fortunately, the water works department had not started on the work of changing the water mains which cross in the creek bed at this point. This work was to have been commenced Monday morning but it will necessarily be delayed until the waters recede sufficiently to allow the men to work in the stream.

Fire Chief Bausch and Service Director McCarthy sent to the Second street hill district a quantity of fire hose which was stored in a barn at a convenient point. This is done as a precautionary measure in case a fire should occur there. Firemen would have to be transferred across the stream today in boats, should a fire break out. The water pressure on the hill is unimpaired.

OHIO ELECTRIC SUFFERS.

The entire east end of the Ohio Electric railway system was tied up by the storm. Two passenger cars were stalled on account of washouts and landslides and while the one car spent the night in the Black Hand tunnel, one that was caught near Hanover succeeded in unloading all of its passengers, many of whom went to Hanover and took the steam cars into Newark.

A long washout at Clay Lick checked cars going east from Newark early in the course of the storm. Another washout at Dayton stop also demanded immediate attention, while at Hanover a landslide occurred which piled four feet of rocks and sticky clay over the tracks for a distance of several car lengths.

The result was that only work cars were run east out of Newark. Repair crews were brought here from various divisions of the system and sent to work on the washouts and landslides in the hope of clearing the track for traffic some time in the afternoon Monday.

REAL FREAK STORM.

In many respects the three-in-one storm of Monday night was freakish.

From Buckeye Lake comes the report that while the summering place was surrounded with threatening clouds, there was no rainfall until about 1 a. m. Monday, when the storm broke furiously with lightning and thunder and a veritable downpour. The velocity of the wind was not so high in the neighborhood of the lake as in other parts of the county, it is reported.

A B. & O. flagman told of his experience in the storm Monday. He said he went back from his train at Central City about 1 o'clock. There were no indications of rain although the storm was apparently centered over Newark. As he started back to the train the rain let loose and he found lightning flashing all about him and a drenching downpour enveloping the surrounding country.

The entire front cellar wall of a house just nearing completion for James Richardson in North Cedar street, caved in during the storm, after water had poured down from the hill and washed out the foundations. The house was all ready for occupancy, with the exception of interior finishing. The loss, including costs of replacing the foundation and wall will reach a considerable figure.

Newly set curbing along North Cedar street was washed out in several places. The water washed its way under the heavy stone, cleaned out the gravel bedding and turned over the stones in several places. It is said the entire curbing may have to be reset.

It is expected that much greater damage will be reported from the country than could be learned of Monday forenoon.

Among other losses reported from the rural districts Monday was the destruction of the large barn owned by Hunter brothers. The barn was struck by lightning and burned to the ground about midnight. It contained 20 tons of hay, one big load on a wagon, sets of harness and small farming implements. It has been but a few years since the Hunter residence burned, and at a total loss, as the insurance policy had expired only a short time before. The barn, however, was insured at about half it value.

Lightning struck the pavement at a point in South Fifth street during the storm, according to a statement made Monday. No one suffered any injury from the bolt.

The heavy rains flooded new sewer trenches during the night, causing much of the ground under newly laid sewer pipe to settle. Considerable loss will result from this feature alone.

The city's fire alarm system was badly crippled by the wind and Fire Chief Bausch with assistants, spent most of Monday morning repairing the damage and locating "ground" troubles on the fire alarm circuit.

Charles E. Hollander, David Manning and Wm. A. Dorey are ready to testify that Sunday night's rain was "some storm." They had visited Zanesville Sunday afternoon as Mr. Willis Bailey's guests and had started home about 9 p. m. Stormbound at Hanover where a heavy landslide covered the track they remained in the car until daylight when they tramped through the mud to a farmhouse and got breakfast. Walking on toward Newark they stopped at W. S. Weiant's home and were carried the rest of the way in Mr. Weiant's automobile.

Three cars of the Ohio Electric were stalled between Newark and Zanesville during the night and had not moved a wheel up to noon Monday. One was left at Hanover, another at Holbein and the third in the tunnel at Black Hand.

B. & O. HARD HIT.

Reports, though meager, received by division officials of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad here, told of a serious washout at Clay Lick and a bad landslide at C-D tower, formerly known as Coaldale, near Sonora. The vicinity of Cambridge reported numerous serious washouts, and took repair crews out from all along the line. The Sandusky, Shawnee and Columbus divisions of the B. & O. reported all clear for traffic.

The tracks were covered with water near Mansfield, but there were no serious results.

Trains running over the southwestern lines of the road, toward Cambridge, were entirely knocked out and no service was given over the line during Monday forenoon. It probably will be two or three days before anything like a normal schedule will be reached after the trains start their regular runs.

Two spans of the new Zanesville bridge have been swung into place and the latest reports to division offices from Zanesville were to the effect that the new bridge was still standing but that the rapid rise of waters in the Muskingum river had threatened the structure by piling drift wood against the abutments.

A guest of the Hotel Warden who succeeded in getting into telephonic communication with Zanesville at 9 o'clock in the morning reported that while water was rapidly rising, citizens did not believe it would reach a serious stage.

PENNSY GETS OFF.

Inspectors for the Pennsylvania lines went over the fill at the long washout of the Tyndall bridge, which occurred during the big flood three months ago. Trains proceeded cautiously over the fill but were stalled at Clay Lick by a landslide. The trouble there was cleared shortly before noon, however, and trains from the east proceeded to Newark after having been delayed since 1 a. m.

In Newark the storm played havoc in a number of ways. Small trees were blown over, and much of the green fruit was scattered on the ground. Cellars were filled in many places and washouts along the north and south forks of the Licking river and Log Pond run were common.

In the surrounding country, crops suffered great damage. The hard downpour of rain and the heavy wind blew down wheat and uncut hay, but what reports can be received from the country immediately surrounding Newark are to the effect that most of the products had reached a stage of hardihood where the actual destruction will not be heavy. Corn was blown down in many fields where it had not gained sufficient strength to withstand the strong gale, or where it was not protected by neighboring buildings, woods or hills.

THE STORM AT UTICA.

Utica, O., July 14—One of the most terrifying electrical storms that has ever visited this town broke about 9:30 o'clock Sunday night and continued until early morning. Lightning flashed and thunder roared without cessation. The rain came down in torrents but in spite of this very little damage was done. The rain however, in some localities was so heavy as to submerge the crops, and a horse belonging to A. P. Staunton, a hay and grain dealer of this place, was killed when struck by lightning.

The telephone lines were temporarily put out of commission, but the damage was soon repaired and communication restored.

DERRICKS BLOWN DOWN.

Granville, O., July 14—An electrical storm which visited Granville early Sunday evening did considerable damage to the outlying vicinity. The wind, rain and lightning combined to make the night almost unbearable. The wind wrecked several gas derricks, and the telephone company suffered considerable damage. Poles were blown down and the lightning played havoc with the connections.

Small streams were swollen rapidly and nearby fields were submerged.

HIGH WATER AT VANATTA.

Vanatta, O., July 14—The greatest damage in this village was caused by the heavy downpour of rain which took on the appearance of a cloud burst. The fields were filled with water, in many places it covered the fences. In several instances some of the smaller stock was drowned and hundreds of chickens were lost in the deluge. The rain was accompanied by sharp lightning. Levi Lane lost a valuable horse in the storm.

Officials experienced difficulty in transporting workmen to the scenes of the trouble and it was quite late in the morning before a good start was made on clearing away the debris at Hanover and filling the washouts and dangerous bits of track along the entire line from here to Zanesville.

Railroad time schedules were shot to pieces by the storm. Wire service being damaged prevented complete reports of the numerous washouts and landslides, and necessitated slow and cautious procedure on the part of trains undertaking their regular runs.

man makes a postoffice recommendation that will benefit him politically? If that is a crime it can be charged up against every member of the Ohio delegation

"But the charge that I recommended Alberson for the postoffice in Tuscarawas county, which I lose after the redistricting law goes into effect, for the sake of the political good he might do me in Ashland county, which is part of my new district, is absolutely false. The fact is that Alberson has been out of Ashland county for 11 years. The amount of political influence which any man would retain in a county which he left 11 years ago is largely hypothetical.

"No; I recommended Mr. Alberson because he is a faithful, old-line Democrat, who has never bolted the party and who has always worked for his party's success. In addition to that he has long been my personal friend and supporter in my campaigns. He has been editor of a Democratic newspaper at Coshocton, and his newspaper has been one of the two which have supported me through thick and thin. There is nothing in the charge that I recommended him because of his influence in any other county. Not only has Alberson always been a Democrat, but since 1896 he has been consistently a Bryan Democrat. He was for Governor Harmon for the Presidency, and that is the man he should have supported. His support of Harmon was proof of his loyalty to the party in Ohio.

"The charge made that Mr. Alberson is not a bona fide resident of New Philadelphia is also false. For six years he has been running the newspaper at Coshocton, but he always retained his residence at New Philadelphia. When he owned the New Philadelphia Times he built a home for himself and his family in New Philadelphia, but when he sold the Times to Mr. Hurst he did not sell his home, but left his family in it and returned to New Philadelphia every Saturday night from Coshocton. During this period he has been a voter in New Philadelphia. In fact, he has been a voter in New Philadelphia for 11 years.

"The charge being made that I offered Mr. Hurst a bargain whereby he could have had the postmastership is another falsehood. The truth of the matter is that Hurst, with his newspaper, has broken up the Tuscarawas county organization, and undoubtedly there have been a number of men who would like to see him dispose of the newspaper. I have no doubt that some of these men have suggested to Hurst that if he would sell the paper they would back him for the postmastership. But no such offer was made to Hurst with my knowledge or consent."

FIRE DESTROYS A RESIDENCE ON McGONAGLE FARM

The electrical storm of Sunday evening brought destruction on the farm of James McGonagle, located north of Newark. The residence on the farm was struck by lightning and burned to the ground.

Mr. McGonagle, who resides on West Main street, has placed his farm under the management of Mr. Benjamin Hughes, and Mr. Hughes and his family were residing in the house when it was destroyed. A lightning bolt struck the house and it quickly caught fire and was destroyed, in spite of the efforts made by the residents to save it. The family escaped without injury, but the household goods were nearly all destroyed.

The loss is placed at $2,500, which is partially covered by insurance.

The reflection from the fire was plainly seen by residents in the north end of the city and the telephone girls were kept busy answering questions as to the location of the fire.

STORM RAGED AT HANOVER.

David Criss, of the firm of Criss Bros., was one of the victims of the storm, in that he was compelled to walk most of the way from his home in Hanover Monday morning because interurban traffic was out of commission.

Mr. Criss brought reports of the havoc wrought in Hanover by the high wind and heavy rainfall. Many trees were blown down and the water of Rocky Fork creek ran over the banks, flooding houses and causing several families in the village to abandon their homes until the water recedes.

Hanover residents were set in a state of excitement by the constant roar of the storm and continued play of lightning which lasted until well after dawn. Mr. Criss says the illumination of the clouds caused by fires was plainly visible from Hanover but no reports were received there Monday morning indicating where the conflagrations occurred.

CLOUDBURST BREAKS OVER CENTRAL OHIO

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]

Columbus, O., July 14.—A cloudburst which broke over a large part of Central Ohio early today paralyzed railroad and interurban traffic out of Columbus and several other points for several hours. The storm broke furiously about 4:30 a. m. and while only forty-five one hundredths of an inch of rain fell within 30 minutes, small rivers and creeks were swelled quickly overflowing their banks, washing out bridges and causing landslides.

The Muskingum river at this point is said to have risen nine feet during the night.

Pennsylvania service between Columbus and the east was paralyzed during the night. An eastbound fast New York train left Columbus last night at 10:20 and got as far as Newark. It remained there during the night and this morning returned to the Union Station at Columbus.

Two washouts were reported on the Pennsylvania lines east of Columbus and west of Dennison. One was reported at Hanover and another one between Coshocton and Newcomerstown.

A Baltimore and Ohio train from Newark and Pittsburg due in Columbus early today detoured at Cambridge and Newcomerstown on account of washouts. it was still there at 10 o'clock this morning and could not proceed either way.

All trains going east on the Pennsylvania are being detoured by way of the C., A. & C. to Orrville and the Pittsburg, Ft. Wayne and Chicago division to Chicago.

The interurban service between Columbus and eastern points is also paralyzed. Not a car was moving east of Newark this morning. Reports from Newark say that the creeks and rivers have swollen during the night to such an extent that train service was badly crippled but all schedules were resumed before evening.

Word reaching here was that it would be several hours before the water will recede enough to permit the train to resume its journey.

A pontoon bridge which was constructed over the Muskingum river here following the floods of last March, early today was swept down stream with four men who happened to be crossing it. The men were rescued several hundred yards down stream just before the bridge went over a dam.
